U. S. STEEL SIGNS PAY-HOUR AGREEMENT WITH C. I. O., BRINGING RAISES TO 335,000 EMPLOYEES OF 13 FIRMS

MAYOR SAYS CITY 'DUMPING GROUND' FOR UNDERWORLD

3,000 Persons Here Depend on Law Violations for Their Livelihood, He Charges, Citing Attempts to 'Frame' Upright Police

VOTING CITIZENS GIVEN HIGH PRAISE

'I'm Taking Orders From Them,' Hartsfield Says, 'They Are the Best Element of Our City.'

A blistering indictment of crime conditions here was made last night by Mayor Hartsfield in which he charged "Atlanta has become the dumping ground for a horde of undesirable characters."

Speaking on the general subject of law enforcement, in the second of a series of radio talks, the mayor said "responsible law enforcement officials have estimated that there are around 3,000 persons in Atlanta whose livelihood depends upon law violation."

"They consist of hundreds of gamblers, bootleggers, dive keepers and lottery operators, runners and writers, located in various parts of our city, all of whom are opposed to any law enforcement and whose greatest fear in life is an honest, efficient police administration," he continued.

Waging Underground Fight. "This element is even now waging an underground fight to try to discredit the present police administration and trying in every way to get some persons or group of persons identified with the present administration to hinder or obstruct our efforts."

The mayor recounted an incident, bringing out the point that criminal elements "are moving heaven and earth to discredit the police department," saying: "From various quarters we hear of their plots and schemes and you can look out in the next few months for some misguided person to try to pull their chestnuts out of the fire."

"Politics works in devious means and oftentimes the attack is made on some other front from the one they are really interested in."

"Some of this element is moving heaven and earth to try to find some method of discrediting our new police department headed by one of their favorite tricks is to give false information, hoping it will result in a raid on some innocent citizen."

Fake Tip Cited. As an illustration of a deceptive department a few days ago was given information about a certain criminal character who was supposed to be installed in a high-class apartment house.

"The exact location was given and our detective department was urged to go after him immediately. Instead, our men very cautiously made a quick investigation through the owners of this apartment house and found the location occupied by a very high-class and well-known lady."

"No sooner had they returned to police station than the phone rang and a voice said our detective department had raided and insulted good citizens, and the newspapers were immediately notified. These plotters had watched our men go into the building and thought they had them in a trap. But they failed."

Beer Permits as Shields. The mayor charged that many undesirable characters are using beer permits as shields for other criminal activities.

"One of our principal troubles which we are trying to remedy is the presence in Atlanta of hundreds of little tin shacks and holes in the wall, operating under beer permits, which are simply fronts for plain dives where disorderly characters gather," he said.

"Keeping down crime in a big city is just like eliminating mosquitoes," he went on, "you have got to clean out the places where criminals breed and not their crimes."

The mayor also drew a cheerless picture.

Officer's 'Look' Ends Threatened Sit-Down.

NEW ORLEANS, March 2.—(UP)—Sedentary system, southern style.

Twenty-two negro men and women, mostly women, entered the city welfare department offices today and, through a spokesman, said they were not getting enough help for existence.

"We're willing to sit here until tomorrow morning," one volunteered.

The 22 sat down.

Welfare workers at closing time tonight called police.

One blue-coated, brass-buttoned, great seal of New Orleans police department-bearing individual entered the room.

He said nothing, just looked.

The 22 didn't say anything, either—just got up and filed out.

TAX EXEMPTIONS FOR HOME OWNERS PASSED BY HOUSE

Measure To Oust Heck From Highway Board Tops Today's Calendar in House; Civil Service Bill Held Up in Senate.

SENATOR HARRELL STAGES FILIBUSTER

$2,500 Homestead and $300 Personal Property Exemption Provided in Bill Backed by Rivers.

Another campaign promise of Governor Rivers—limited tax exemptions for homesteads and household goods—moved a step nearer to realization yesterday.

The house approved, 162 to 23, a proposed constitutional amendment to provide a $2,500 exemption for homesteads and then quickly adopted, 167 to 0, companion measure setting a $300 exemption for personal property.

Shortly after the bills were passed by the house, Speaker Roy W. Harris announced that today's calendar would be headed by the administration-sponsored bill to reorganize the State Highway Department, a measure designed to remove Commissioner John Heck, of Marietta, the last remaining Talmadge appointee on the board.

The bill changes certain other features of the act setting up the Highway Department but brings about no material change. The measure already has been passed by the senate, and Speaker Harris yesterday forestalled its approval by the house, which means that Heck will go out before the end of the week.

Governor Rivers has given no indication as to whom he will appoint to the Highway Board in Heck's place.

Both exemption bills must go to the senate for approval after which they

NAVY BILL PASSED BY HOUSE GROUP

$26,555,428 Appropriation Will Finance Building of 81 New Vessels.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(UP)—President Roosevelt's billion-dollar 1937-38 national defense program was formally set in motion today when the house appropriations committee favorably reported a $26,555,428 navy appropriation bill, including $130,000,000 for new warships already under construction or to be laid down.

As soon as the naval bill is out of the way a $416,000,000 measure to finance the army's activities will be introduced, the two together setting a peace time record and carrying out the President's announced policy of a national defense second to none.

Chairman Carl Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, of the house naval affairs committee, said the navy bill provided "all the money we can use" under present treaty-strength construction plans which fall far short of Great Britain's.

The county commissioners will be asked today to release to the department $23,000 for emergency relief of the first half of March upon the promise of the city fathers to obtain the release of the city's money for the last half.

About 30 per cent of the emergency relief fund will be taken from the Fulton welfare department if the state security benefits shared in by state, federal government and county begin by the end of the month, as is hoped.

Unless the county gives its March donation Baird said the department will be forced to close. The county thus far has agreed to give only as much as the city.

D. J. Lee, of 107 Georgia avenue, who appeared before the first meeting of the special investigating committee last week, and Alberman Carpenter were the two witnesses making specific charges last night.

Lee said he knew, and gave the committee the names of two persons who have private incomes and receive relief from the Fulton department of the average citizen.

"We are out to win the first award and to bring that $3,500 to Rockdale."

Relief Probe Body Hears Charges of Wasted Funds

Charging the Fulton department of public welfare has wasted relief money, D. J. Lee, of Georgia avenue, is shown telling the special relief investigation committee that the department gives cash to bootleggers and that persons worth $25,000 are receiving aid while the poor starve.

Majority of Protests Based on Amount of Aid and Reduction of Rolls.

Charges that emergency relief money is improperly distributed were made by two witnesses before the special relief investigation committee last night as the Fulton Department of Public Welfare faced early closing for lack of funds.

Nearly 100 witnesses who testified before Alderman Ed A. Gilliam's special committee at the city hall public hearing, only four complaints were pertinent to charges of mismanagement and waste hurled in council by Alderman Robert Carpenter, who led the fight against release of the city's relief money for administration by the Fulton welfare department.

Though a number declared that case workers came to see them only infrequently, the army's activities will be introduced, the two together setting a peace time record and carrying out the President's announced policy of a national defense second to none.

WILKES COUNTY SOLON DEFENDS ROOSEVELT

Representative Clement E. Sutton, of Wilkes county, Rivers' administration floor leader, replied in a statement yesterday to criticism of President Roosevelt's supreme court proposal by Senator Walter F. George.

Sutton said the "specific charges" by Senator George that the President "has repudiated loyal Democrats" reeks too much of partisanship to be considered as the sober expression of the average citizen.

The Wilkes county representative is the only Rivers administration leader to comment publicly on the President's proposal to add one justice for each member of the supreme court over 70.

Sutton said the country will not lose its faith in President Roosevelt because of his dissatisfaction with our present judicial system."

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va., March 2.—(AP)—Sheriff J. Mason Smith declared tonight he was "definitely satisfied" 18-year-old Cleo Sprouse, whose chloroformed body was found near the University of Virginia cemetery today, was a murder victim.

FUTURE NRA LAWS MUST BE SIMPLER, CONGRESS IS TOLD

Presidential Committee Says Old Act Covered Too Much Ground; Johnson Hits Report.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP)—A presidential committee which conducted a post-mortem on the dead NRA urged today that future attempts to regulate business be more flexible and simpler.

The report, containing the results of exhaustive research into the functioning of the National Recovery Administration, was sent to congress by President Roosevelt. He expressed belief "it will point the way to the solution of many vexing problems of legislation and administration in one of the most vital subjects of national concern."

The committee credited NRA with lifting wages, putting more than 2,000,000 persons to work. But it hit at what it called "uncertain" policies and "impractical and unenforceable" provisions of codes.

Several of the committee findings drew a hot challenge from General Hugh S. Johnson, first NRA head, who asserted the group was "packed" with persons "hostile to NRA."

Cite Court Decisions. Known as the President's committee on industrial analysis and composed of three cabinet members and four outside economists and businessmen, the group said that if the NRA type of business controls are to be tried again they "should be limited to a few important industries."

The report cited supreme court decisions.

RETAIL SALES SET EIGHT-YEAR MARK

Sixth District Report Reveals Department Store Sales at January Peak.

Retail trade and cotton consumption established records during January, the business review of the Sixth Federal Reserve District Bank revealed yesterday.

Department store sales were highest since 1929 and the daily average consumption of cotton, the south's sure business barometer, was the largest of any other month on record. Mills of Georgia used 134,075 bales of cotton in the month, or 18.6 per cent more than in January, 1936.

Customary January slumps were less than past January than previously and in many industrial fields sales and productions jumped.

After extremely heavy Christmas buying in November and December, department store sales declined slightly but were 12.2 per cent higher than in 1936 and the highest since 1929.

Wholesale trade presented the brightest aspect of the industrial picture. Wholesale trade declined less than one per cent from December to January, after increasing 18.1 per cent in 1936 over the previous 12 months and was 27.5 per cent above the January, 1936, level.

Carolings Down. Carolings declined in January, reflecting in part the effects of floods. There were substantial declines in

Women To Sit on Georgia Juries If Pending Bill Passes Assembly

The Muscogee county delegation in really are, women are far superior to men.

Mr. Smith said he and his colleagues had received reports from numerous states where women are permitted to sit on the traverse jury and the grand juries of the state.

Representative H. Dixon Smith, dean of the Muscogee delegation, said his colleagues, Representatives Leonard and Elliott, already had affixed their signatures to the bill. The measure is one of those sponsored by the Georgia League of Women Voters.

Representative Smith said he had asked the Muscogee delegation to be permitted to join them in the bill.

"Women have every other right in Georgia, legal and otherwise," Representative Smith said. "In fact there are many rights they have which men do not have. We propose to give them the right to sit on juries and to be on the grand jury. I do not think any member of the legislature will disagree with our contention that as legislators, which grand jurors

JOINT CONFERENCE ON DETAILS SLATED

Murray Will Make Similar Demands on Rest of Industry; Declares Company Unions "Dead."

PITTSBURGH, March 2.—(AP) Organized labor won formal recognition tonight as a collective bargaining agent for its members from the chief unit of the giant United States Steel Corporation, ending the possibility of a gigantic labor battle.

The epochal step in the industrial relations of the $5,000,000,000 industry was announced quietly by Philip Murray, chairman of the steel workers' organizing committee and first lieutenant of John L. Lewis, generalissimo of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

A preliminary contract signed by Benjamin F. Fairless, president of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation, in addition to granting $5 a day minimum pay and a 40-hour week, effective March 16, to its 120,000 workers, also provided:

Recognition of the steel workers' organizing committee as the collective bargaining agency for those employees of the corporation who are members of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

Created a joint committee of company and union representatives to meet not later than March 10 to effect a more detailed agreement on working conditions, application of wage rates, hours, rules and a method for adjudicating disputes arising under terms of the agreement.

The clauses granting the wage increase and establishment of a 40-hour work week will take effect on March 16, the date when the new minimum pay and 40-hour week will be in effect.

Milestones in Labor History. Murray hailed the agreement, reached in a three and one-half hour conference between him and Fairless, as marking a new milestone in the history of labor relations between employees and employers.

"It paves the way for the maintenance of peace in the industry and in accord with the announced policy of the Committee for Industrial Organization and steel workers' organizing committee to organize steel workers without resorting to the use of strikes, violence or industrial disturbances," said Murray.

The stock market had reflected optimism during the day, United States Steel stock pushing above $119 a share, up about $5, and Bethlehem rising almost $3 to $87.50.

One statement by Murray drew instant attention from the industry: "This agreement undoubtedly reflects the definite change in the labor policy of the (United States Steel) Corporation."

"We expect its results will bring about organization of the entire steel industry."

"We are in the process of extending this agreement to all other operating subsidiaries of the corporation and expect their executives will sign a similar agreement as has been indicated to us."

Murray added that his committee expected to extend invitations to all of the independents throughout the country to participate in conferences

'Not Enough Coin,' So Columnist Quits

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP)—"F. P. A." was out of the Herald Tribune today because "they just wanted me to work for less money, whereas I wanted to work for more."

The columnist, known to as many by his initials, F. P. A., as by his name, Franklin P. Adams, had conducted "The Conning Tower" in the Herald Tribune since sale of the old New York World in 1931.

His column did not appear today and Adams said his contract, which expired yesterday, had not been renewed.

"It was an amicable parting in most quarters," said Adams. "The only reason was coin."

Government publication of salary figures showed Adams received $26,573 in 1934 and $21,852 in 1935.

SPEAKER URGES HOUSE TO PURCHASE TICKETS FOR VICTORY DINNERS

Sale Vigorously Pushed for Big Affair To Be Held Tomorrow Night.

Members of the Georgia house of representatives yesterday gave enthusiastic endorsement to the Roosevelt Victory dinners to be given in various parts of Georgia tomorrow night. The action followed an impassioned plea by Speaker Roy Harris calling on all members to evidence their party loyalty by purchasing one or more tickets, thus contributing toward Georgia's $15,000 quota of the half-million-dollar deficit of the Democratic National Committee.

"Various Georgia cities will give victory dinners Thursday night," said Speaker Harris in his address to the house. "They will serve the dual purpose of gathering good Democrats together to celebrate our great victory in the national election last November and of paying the deficit of the Democratic National Committee."

"It is a pleasure for me, at the request of Cam Dorsey, state chairman, and of Alex MacDougald, Atlanta and Fulton county chairman, to urge as many of you as can possibly do so to attend one of these dinners. Either go to the Atlanta district dinner which will be at the Piedmont Driving Club at 6:30 Thursday evening or, if your legislative duties will permit and you so prefer, go to the dinner nearest your home. In any event, whether you can go or not, buy a ticket as a party campaign contribution."

"The people of Georgia and the south, for the first time since the War Between the States, now play an integral part in the United States government. I cannot help thinking back to four years ago when the banks were closed, business at a standstill, the people suffering and their activities hampered. I cannot help com-

JAPANESE TO BOLSTER DEFENSES TO COMBAT 'MENACE' IN PACIFIC

New War Plan To Emphasize Scientific Methods of Fighting.

TOKYO, March 2.—(AP)—Japan, with a wary eye directed toward the United States, turned today to a study of the newest methods of chemical warfare and stepped-up air program to strengthen her defenses in the Pacific.

Gas and other chemical weapons, General Gen Sugiyama, minister of war, disclosed on the floor of the Japanese diet, are being concentrated upon to emphasize scientific methods of warfare.

Japan need not "fear" the United States for three years, Navy Minister Matsuoka Yonai told the diet, when the navy and naval air rearmament program is completed, despite the "menace" he said would result from increased United States air units in the Pacific.

An invitation by a third power to discuss arms limitation with the United States would be accepted, Admiral Yonai said, if the parity aimed at equitable arms reduction.

In addition to the United States, Japanese military plans principally consider Soviet Russia, who the war minister said had already strained herself financially in preparing for war.

The army is planning broad steps in mechanization of its units and stressing of technical preparation for war, the minister stated. The six-year army program is sufficient to protect Japanese interests even though Soviet forces in the Far East are augmented, he said.

Admiral Yonai indicated Japan's chief fear was that United States air units in Alaska, the Aleutian Islands,

NIAGARA ICE FLOE LARGEST SINCE '08

Grinding Cakes Have Formed Barrier Nearly 60 Feet High.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., March 2.—(AP)—Thousands of cakes of ice surged over Niagara Falls today in what rivermen on the Canadian side said appeared to be the largest ice movement in the Niagara river since 1908.

Grinding cakes came close to the two Maid of the Mist steamers in their winter drydock.

Burt Le Blond, manager of the Maid of the Mist dock, in Canada, said ice had piled 60 feet high at the foot of the falls.

The Maid of the Mist waiting room, a small building at Niagara Falls, Ontario, where tourists board the Maid of the Mist in the navigation season was swept out on the ice.

"The ice is now within about six feet of the steamer," Le Blond said. "We think they are safe, but another ice shove may push the ice up higher."

Le Blond said rivermen expected another "shove" later today.

Hawaii and other Pacific possessions would be increased.

NO CONFERENCE POSSIBLE, U. S. SPOKESMAN SAYS

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP)—Navy spokesmen said today no basis exists for a new naval disarmament conference so long as Japan persists in its demand for equality in fleet strength.

These sources asserted there was nothing new in the announcement by the Japanese minister of marine of Japan's readiness to attend such a conference based on equitable reduction of armaments.

STRIKERS DEMAND 5c BEER.

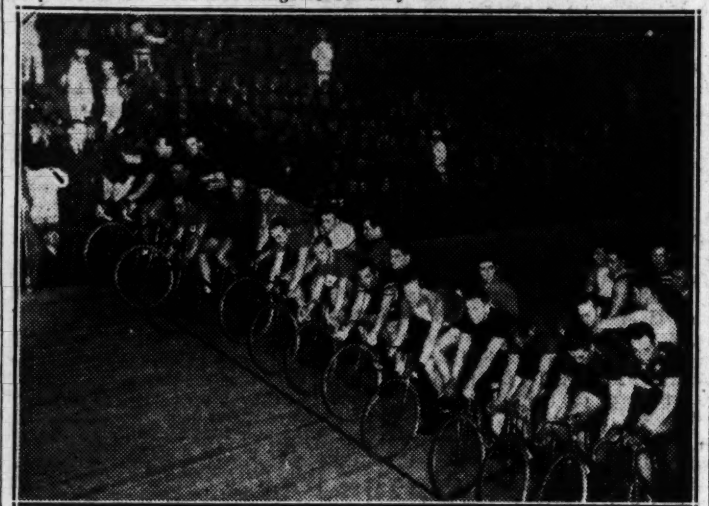

JOLIET, Ill., March 2.—(AP)—Beer drinkers in this city staged a sit-down strike demanding return of "nickel beer." The price was "upped" to a dime by the Tavern Owners' Association yesterday. Patrons of Antone Grohar's tavern jammed the place last night but they just sat, refusing to drink 10-cent steins.

COMMITTEE URGES SIMPLER NRA LAWS

clauses on government business regulation statutes, and traced the legal roads toward NRA objectives which "still remain open." Among these it listed relaxation of anti-trust laws to permit trade agreements formulated by industries themselves but reviewed by a governing body.

It urged that control of trade practices and labor standards be divorced in any future regulatory system, adding that the NRA attempted to cover too much ground.

It said that several measures fitted within the present constitutional framework, among them the Walsh-Healey act imposing labor standards on firms contracting with the government, federal statutes aiding state regulation and certain measures to guarantee collective bargaining.

Price-Fixing Failure. The report said the government's power over interstate commerce would appear to include authority to set up "reasonable" regulation of business through federal incorporation of firms.

Any broad scheme for price-fixing, the committee said, might be interpreted as an unreasonable restraint of trade. It added that NRA efforts to fix prices failed.

There was no mention of President Roosevelt's supreme court proposal.

The committee was composed of Secretaries Wallace, Roper and Perkins, George M. Harrison, railway labor executive; Professor J. M. Clark, of Columbia University; George H. Mead, Dayton, Ohio, industrialist, and William H. Davis, New York attorney.

The 240-page report analyzed NRA effects on the economic structure. Its statement that wage increases under NRA had been partly neutralized by price increases brought a blunt denial from Johnson.

The former administrator asserted this conclusion was "absolutely erroneous" and said statistics demonstrated that while other prices climbed those of codified industries did not.

RED FARMERS REJECT IMAGES FOR SALARIES

MOSCOW, March 2.—(AP)—The Communist president of a collective farm near Novorossiysk lost his job today because of his novel idea for paying wages.

He found some old icons in a closed church. Calling the farm's grizzled peasants together, he told them he thought one image was worth three days' labor, another one and another only a quarter of a day.

The peasants insisted on cold cash. When authorities found out about the scheme they fired the president.

"If I could find a good rip-roaring story," she said, "a sophisticated comedy, then I might consider making another movie. But motion picture work is such a grind. You never get to do any of the things you want to do. I worked an average of 12 hours a day in the studio if there wasn't something special on the schedule. But there wasn't."

She was here to show her famous doll house.

President's Report On Study of NRA

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP) The text of President Roosevelt's message to congress today transmitting a report on a study of the old industrial recovery act follows:

I transmit herewith a report on the operation of the National Industrial Recovery Administration, which has been prepared by those members of the committee on industrial analysis who have no official relationship to the government. They are Professor J. M. Clark, of Columbia University, an economist; William H. Davis, of New York City, a lawyer; George M. Harrison, of Cincinnati, Ohio, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks and also chairman of the Railway Labor Executives' Association; and George H. Mead, of Dayton, Ohio, a manufacturer and former chairman, Business Advisory Council.

REPORT BASED ON STUDY OF THE WORK OF THE NRA

This report is based on an exhaustive study of the work of the National Recovery Administration, which has been in progress ever since June, 1935, and which has been carried on since March, 1936, under the direction of the committee on industrial analysis, which I created by executive order, which consisted of the four non-governmental members who make this report, and the secretaries of agriculture, commerce and labor. The staff work for this committee has been performed by the division of industrial economics in the Department of Commerce.

This report presents the first adequate survey by an impartial group of the entire work of the National Recovery Administration, reviewing the objectives, the successes and failures of attainment, the administration and the legal problems of the National Recovery Administration. The exhaustive collection of code histories, statistical information and staff studies, which provided the basis for this report, are now available for further research by students interested in the many phases of the relationships between government and industry.

MAY AID CONGRESS IN STUDYING NEW LAWS

The report of the committee should furnish invaluable aid to the congress in the consideration and determination of vital legislative problems. This report, with its admirable, well-balanced weighing of controversial issues and its impartial review of complicated factual situations, provides a dispassionate consideration of a host of problems as to which emotion, self-interest and prejudice have too frequently obscured the truth. It is worthy of the most serious consideration by the congress and should be made available for widespread study and discussion. In my opinion, it will point the way to the solution of many vexing problems of legislation and administration in one of the most vital subjects of national concern.

know, would be acceptable to the people of the state."

Others Not Ready.

The Governor said he was not ready to announce the heads of the other three divisions of the natural resources department. These divisions are one for forestry, another for mines and mining, which will include geology, and the fourth, a division of state parks.

It is widely reported in capital circles that, in the event Mr. McIntosh decides he has only time enough to give his services to the planning board, the Governor will call on Robert F. Burch, of Eastman, at present state supervisor of purchases, to head the resources bureau.

Many capitol observers believe B. M. Lufburrow, state forester who was ousted by the Talmadge administration nearly two years ago, will return to the state government as head of the forestry division. Lufburrow at present is connected with the Federal Forestry Department. He, like State Entomologist Manning Yeomans, joined the federal forces immediately after his removal by Talmadge. Young Yeomans already has been restored to his old post by Governor Rivers.

Seeks Mining Engineer.

It is not known whom the Governor has in mind to head the division of mines and mining, but it is known he desires to obtain the services of an outstanding mining engineer who can aid in the development of the industry in the state.

For head of the state park system the Governor is known to be anxious to obtain a man who is well versed with the state of Georgia from one end to the other, one who knows its beauty spots and how to attract tourists to them. This appointment is not expected to be known until the resources bill is finally adopted and signed.

Director-select Mitchell recently retired as clerk of the Ware County Commission, a post which he held for many years. He was one of the leaders of the Rivers forces at the Welton convention at Macon last year and was chairman of the eighth district organization setting up that convention.

Seeks Okefenokee Highway.

Mitchell has long been interested in the development of the Okefenokee swamp and for several years has been seeking to develop a scenic highway through that area, a program which will be pushed by the parks division of the resources department.

Zack D. Cravey, the Talmadge appointed commissioner of game and fish has been fighting the bill to create the resources department, at least that part of it which legislates him out of office, but despite his opposition it was overwhelmingly passed by the house and Rivers leaders are confident of its approval in the senate.

The bill was before Senator J. P. Shedd's senate committee on conservation last night for discussion, and it is expected to be placed on the calendar for final legislative consideration next week.

The Governor announced last night he had appointed Rufus I. Stephens, former member of the legislature from Laurens county, as solicitor of the city court of Dublin, to succeed Joe Chappell, now secretary to Senator Richard B. Russell Jr.

Rivers said he would not ask confirmation of the appointment by the senate because Stephens will serve only until the June 8 general election when a solicitor will be elected by the people.

The committee voted to report the bill favorably to the senate, with one or two minor amendments.

ATLANTA, GA., MARCH 3, 1937.

PROGRESSIVE CATTLEMEN

An outstanding event in the history of Georgia's agricultural progress will be signaled today when a joint session of the general assembly will be held in honor of some 600 of the state's cattlemen, who will visit the capitol and, through selected spokesmen, explain and discuss what they conceive as the most urgent needs in agricultural legislation at the present time.

E. B. Weatherly, of Cochran, president of the Middle Georgia Livestock Association, will be the principal speaker, being introduced to the legislators by Dean Paul Chapman, of the Georgia College of Agriculture, who will speak from the standpoint of the farm college.

The two great needs of the farming sections of the state, it is claimed by leaders of the group, are remedies for depleted soils and better agricultural education. They will advocate greater development of the livestock industry, both with a view to restoration of the productivity of the soil and for the increase of the average farm income, thus providing means for better education of young people on the farms.

Colonel Weatherly in his address will stress the fact that in the past less than 5 per cent of the state appropriations for education have been used for the teaching of agriculture and the training of properly equipped farmers for the future; this despite the fact that Georgia is still 75 per cent a rural state and its prosperity primarily based on the success of its farmers.

A large percentage of the legislators come from counties that are largely rural, most of their constituents being dependent upon the farm for their living and whatever degree of success they may attain in life. Those who represent the more populous counties are acutely aware of the fact that towns and cities depend for a great part upon the success of farmers in their agricultural hinterlands.

The objectives sought by this gathering of cattlemen being for the general welfare of all engaged in agricultural pursuits, their appearance before the joint session should be productive of results that will greatly aid all classes of farmers.

CINCINNATI'S EXAMPLE

Murray Seasongood, mayor of Cincinnati, who recently spoke at the Emory Institute of Citizenship, relates a remarkable story of improvement in government in an article entitled, "How Shall We Run Our Cities?" in the current issue of Scribner's Magazine.

At the outset, Mr. Seasongood says:

If you had buttonholed Lincoln Steffens some 30 years ago and asked him what was the best-governed city in America, he would have said something like this: "I can't tell you which is the best-governed; I can tell you which is the worst-governed—Cincinnati." And nobody would have doubted him. . . . But today this same Cincinnati is as good as it once was bad. Competent and disinterested observers, men accustomed to measuring their words, do not mind coming right out and saying that it is the best-governed municipality in all our broad land.

Cincinnati was ruled by a vicious machine. In 1912 a civil service system was set up for the city and for the time being reformers ruled the city and abolished the spoils system. But later the Cox-Hynicka machine recaptured city hall, "filled the commission (civil service) as it wished, and began pouring the gravy."

"Several years passed," writes Seasongood, "and then, in 1923, I fired what has been called 'the shot heard round the wards.' It was at a meeting of the Cincinnati Association during a debate on whether city officials should be voted the extra levy they were asking." This Seasongood opposed, and he was bitterly assailed for his stand.

Mr. Seasongood made a lot of speeches and insisted that Cincinnati "should have a nonpartisan city-manager form of government, that all positions should be filled on the basis of merit, and that there should be an independent investigation of my statements and figures."

An investigation was made and Mr. Seasongood's charges were proved. Later, a small group initiated an amendment to the city charter. The movement spread rapidly and in 1926 Mr. Seasongood was elected mayor. A city-manager form of government was set up and a real merit system was put in. The result is that today Cincinnati is the best-governed city in the United States.

Cincinnati's record is a guiding star for other American cities struggling with bad or inefficient government. An aroused citizenry with real leadership can accomplish great things.

CAUSE FOR REJOICING

If rumors to the effect that the "Scottsboro cases" have been adjusted turn out to be a prelude to actual settlement, Alabamians, as well as southerners in general, will have reason to rejoice. The amazing thing is that some short cut was not found long ago to get rid of this nightmare.

Whatever may be the merits of the controversy, two outgrowths of the affair are beyond dispute. It was given a political aspect when Lieutenant Governor Knight, who prosecuted the cases, ran for his present post largely on the basis of his handling of the trials. And it made the state of Alabama the special target of radicals and reformers eager to exploit every untoward event.

If this case had been well handled to begin with, there would have been no such aftermath as has developed. The cases would not have gone to the United States supreme court time and again, giving the whole country a painful and distorted impression.

Since that first blunder, Alabama authorities have continued making grievous mistakes, with the result that "Scottsboro" has become another name for a shirking of duty, a name for a shirking of duty, a name for a shirking of duty.

A TRIBUTE TO SERVICE
"Walter," known to all of the communicants of St. Luke's Episcopal church and who knows each by name and face as the result of 36 years of faithful service as sexton of that, the largest Episcopal church in the south, was on last Sunday tendered a tribute typical of the attitude of the people of the south toward those who serve them faithfully.

Before the sermon, the Rev. John Moore Walker, rector, stated to the congregation that a voluntary appreciation of Walter's long and faithful service would be made, and asked that Edgar Neely, senior warden, do so.

Walter, in a brief response, voiced his thanks.

Eleven years ago, when St. Luke's was dedicated, Walter was again called before the congregation and the late David Woodward, the senior warden, officially turned over to him the keys of the church.

For 36 years Walter has performed the rites of a sexton incident to every baptism, every confirmation service, every marriage, and every funeral in the church, of any communicant of that church. A record finely deserving of the recognition it was given.

World's Window

Vanishing American Male.

Stewart H. Holbrook has an amusing article under the title of "The Vanishing American Male." He argues and he does it quite forcefully, that what he calls "the comfort-civilization" has turned the American man of former days into an anemic pitiful creature of his former self. "The dominant female doesn't even have to put a ring in his nose," says Mr. Holbrook. "Should optimists doubt this, the author goes on to say, 'there are straws in every wind to advertise the truth. Consider, for instance, the well-known fact that whereas the efforts of Russia and Japan and Italy and Germany are bent toward putting Spartan fiber into their citizens, our own unemployed males are being entertained by WPA whistling acts, while they are not practicing the handsome art of aesthetic dancing.'"

The Real Soviet Russia.

"We are still far from the complete abolition of classes," confesses the official Soviet press, "and the still existing differentiation of city and country, intellectual and physical labor. To this Leon Trotsky replies that the Russian revolution is not a day-dream, but a reality. 'You are furthering the work of the "disolute" "overcivilized" and soft Frenchmen from the so-called "decayed" cities of Europe put up that amazing defense at Verdum and launched those withering attacks at the Chemin des Dames.'"

Von Blomberg Threatens.

To commemorate the march into the Rhineland by the German army a year ago, Marshal von Blomberg made a speech, in the presence of Herr Hitler and the members of the cabinet, that belongs in the category of the speeches which are used to make before the war. He vaunted Germany's new military strength, praised Hitler for having given the Reich a splendid new army, said it was all done to preserve peace in Europe—as if there was the slightest danger of war in Europe before Germany began to rearm—proclaimed that nothing in the world was so settled as the inviolability of Germany, and finally warned that the moment of a general war was approaching rapidly, adding by way of a joke, that Germany had no countervailing power in the world. In this marvelous peaceful state of affairs, which claims that it has a say in every major decision in the world, repudiates the right of the slightest resistance to the outbreak of a new war.

Good Morning.

BY LOUIE D. NEWTON.

STEWARDSHIP.

A friend writes to ask that I devote the column one day to a brief discussion of Christian stewardship. The clear implication of the request is the stewardship of money. Now you will not forget that we have a stewardship of time, of influence, of work, of life. I am glad, however, to discuss the stewardship of money, as taught in the Scripture. Study and I will take just one passage—Second Corinthians 8:1-15. Please turn to your Bible and read the passage.

The church in Macedonia was a poor people's church. That in Corinth was a rich people's church. The poor people's church furnished spiritual power, the rich people's church was asked to provide financial help for needy friends in Jerusalem and elsewhere. Paul found that the people at Macedonia were not willing to excuse themselves from giving. They gave what they could—first giving themselves, and then a most generous offering of substance out of their great poverty. The great apostle offers the Macedonian Christians as excellent examples of stewardship in the church.

First, their gifts were an expression of God's grace (verse one).
Second, their gifts were bountiful in spite of poverty (verse two).
Third, their gifts exceeded their power (verse three).
Fourth, their gifts were free-will, voluntary offerings (verse three).
Fifth, their gifts exceeded the highest hopes of the apostle (verse five).
Sixth, their gifts were representative first in the gift of themselves (verse five).
Seventh, their gifts were according to the will of God (verse five).

Suppose every member of every church followed this principle in the stewardship of money? Would there be any deficits on mission boards, orphanages, schools and hospitals? Would there be any lack of missionaries? Any lack of Bibles?

I believe in the title as the minimum basis of our giving, and that over and above the title we should bring offerings of love to the full measure of ability.

THE NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

BY PAUL MALLON.

OVERHAULING

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Another one of those studies looking toward a complete overhauling of the federal tax structure is secretly under way in the treasury. The new undersecretary, Roswell Magill, is in charge.

The study was ordered for the good official reason that the income from social securities taxes has altered the future revenue picture of the government. In addition, there is the better unofficial reason that the mistakes of the last corporations earnings distribution tax bill are being disclosed daily. Excellent methods of avoiding this tax have already been devised, and changes in it are merely being delayed until the additional experience with the March 15 returns are available for examination.

No official word has been spoken, but Magill is said to lean toward a flat, simple tax of, say, 20 to 30 per cent, to replace the various corporations levies, or, at least, to eliminate the sliding scales.

Tax studies, of course, have become annual affairs. They develop usually at this time of the year, when the taxpayers, preparing returns, become angry enough to want to slap someone's bald pate. However, this one seems to hold some promise of getting beyond the departmental pigeon-hole. Something may be done before congress adjourns.

CHECKS AND BALANCES

All the President's horses and all the President's men have apparently not been able to get the largest farm organization behind the court repleading plan.

The answer, or at least the legitimate excuse, seems to be that the American Farm Bureau Federation rules limit its officials in committing the organization. They can only espouse causes agreed upon by the convention and the board. And there has been no expression on the court from either official source.

Thus, while Ed O'Neal, president of the federation, may take a personal stand with his close friend in the White House, he cannot officially endorse the President's move until a directors' meeting is held.

True democracy, with checks and balances, still survives in the A. F. B. F.

DECEPTION

It seems Russell Alexander really delivered that anti-southern speech which he did not deliver to the west-south harmony conference in Des Moines.

In case this does not make sense to you, consider these facts: The text of Dr. Alexander's speech was recalled and cancelled by an official announcement of the Agriculture Department here, which stated: "Dr. Alexander did not use this speech, but spoke extemporaneously."

But J. S. Russell, farm editor of the Des Moines Tribune, who sat a few feet away from Dr. Alexander, heard the good doctor say all the sharp things about southerners and southern statesmen which were contained in his text. Russell says that Alexander did not read from text, but made the same speech. Others who listened on the radio say they heard the same thing.

The evidence appears to make out a clear charge of deception against the Agriculture Department. The testimony of witnesses suggests that the department misled southern congressmen, who might have answered Dr. Alexander, into believing his attack was not delivered.

If so, this is the only convincing case on record in which the publicity disciples of the new order have succeeded in making the nation believe a speech was not delivered, when it was.

GOOD START

New Philippine High Commissioner Paul McNutt already has won the women's vote for 1940.

The White House probably would have changed his assignment to Marie Byrd Land if it could have seen the way the female employees of the War Department dropped army business coldly to see McNutt sworn in. Women who would not look up to see Clark Gable do a jig left their desks and flocked about the door of the oath chamber. Mr. McNutt looked his best in his double-breasted blue suit.

Attendants amused themselves by calculating what would be the correct odds on whether such strong personalities as General MacArthur, President Quezon and McNutt would be able to find room in the Philippines to accommodate themselves comfortably. The answer was negative. McNutt is expected back within a year.

MELLOWED

The most lonely figure in Washington now is the same one which was most powerful a few years ago.

The sole interest of former Treasury Secretary Andrew Mellon now, 81, is the art gallery gift he is contributing to the capitol. One member of congress who denounced Mellon regularly from the floor in former years is now remarking how eager Mellon is to be in the disengaging of his interest in the practical monument to art.

The only time the capital sees Mellon now is when he walks around the block each morning for exercise.

He wanted a home
And he wouldn't take "no."
For answer to all of his pleas;
So now he's enclosed
A note to his home, before
With all of his favorite fleas.

In Which We Are Complimented.
"Brother, do you live in the country?"
He was a spry little old fellow, with perfectly white hair, and he shared our seat on the street car.

After telling him our home was in Decatur, we thought of the question he had just asked and, the more we thought, the more our sense of pride grew.

Knowing how people of the rural areas regard their urban brothers as somewhat inferior beings, the thought that we could be taken for a country bumpkin by a genuine countryman filled the old breast with burning vanity.

For we knew he was from the country. "My home's near Lithonia," he said. "John Drew will be seen at the Atlanta theater, Friday and Saturday, in 'A Single Man,' by Hubert Henry Davis. The play is the story of a man played by Mary Boland, well-known as Mr. Drew's leading woman."

He Wore No Cloak.

Several years ago Princeton University invited Professor Walter Raleigh, distinguished British scholar, to lecture at the Princeton railway station an official "greeter" approached him and inquired: "Excuse me, are you Walter Raleigh?"

"Yes," the professor replied. "I'm Christopher Columbus. Walter Raleigh is out with Queen Elizabeth looking for a puddle."

Governor Jailed.

Philip Carteret was commissioned first governor of Nova Caesaria, or New Jersey, by King Charles II on February 10, 1666. He quickly regretted it. Governor Andros, of New York, claimed jurisdiction over the territory and soon after Carteret arrived at Elizabethtown with 30 settlers, Andros had him abducted and clapped into jail. Three times Andros sent out a jury with instructions to convict Carteret of this or that—any crime. Three times the juries acquitted him.

Developing Game Hens

By ROBERT QUILLEN

Among the myths dear to the hearts of the people, one of the strangest is the belief that man and woman, unlike other animals, are two distinct species having little in common.

The cave man is pictured as a hairy brute with a low forehead and gorilla shoulders carrying home an unconscious bride who might be the queen of Hollywood bathing beauties except for her yard-long golden tresses. And nobody seems astonished at the brute's good luck.

But there never has been such a difference between the sexes. If the cave man was hairy, his mate needed shearing as well. If he could and did slay the saber-toothed tiger, depend upon it his spouse echoed his roar of battle with an ear-splitting squall and lit all spraddled out on the back of the she tiger, finishing her job as promptly as he finished his.

The pioneer woman was not a soft and useless lady. She was hard as nails. She endured all that her man endured, plus the burdens of her sex, and she could handle a team, swing an ax, shoot and in some instances cook as efficiently as he could. Soft-handed ladies don't conquer a wilderness.

Since women emerged from the kitchen to the center of the highway, it has become the fashion among male writers to bewail the decadence of man and the relative improvement and ultimate triumph of woman.

One article in Scribner's describes this generation of men as warty little things, bald, toothless, humpedbacked and dyspeptic, and then goes on to remind us that women now have 65 per cent of the bank savings, 48 per cent of the railroad stock, 80 per cent of the life insurance payments, 44 per cent of public utilities stock and 40 per cent of all real estate.

But how did they get all this? It was given to them by loving husbands and fathers.

The ladies are no tougher than they used to be. The strong ones may have increased in number, but not in quality.

Every family needs a boss with backbone; and if the man of the house can't qualify, the woman usually takes the job herself. She does it now; she did it in your grandfather's time; and she did it in every era of which we have record.

When a lady dominated a king and ruled from behind the throne, it wasn't a mere matter of sex. The king was a spineless moron and the lady had spunk and a mind like a steel trap.

The relative fitness of the sexes doesn't change, and there is no call to worry about men. There are female bosses because there are shrimps males, but the percentages remain about as they were when Pericles bossed Athens and Aspasia bossed Pericles.

THIS MORNING

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES II.

"Hold present industry; secure additional industries."

That is the program of the New England council, the one in behalf of which the council has united the economic and political forces of its region. For such a program and a unity the south has even greater need, and greater opportunity. In a recent significant address Charles Penrose, the internationally noted consulting engineer, proposed a program for the south based on his years of observation of this region's problems and capacities. It is a program which presumes the importance of industry to balance agriculture here, to absorb the excess products and populations of the southern farm, to contribute both wages and profits to the war against southern poverty, to exploit an unexplored array of natural and human resources awaiting the touch of science, investment, organization. It was an inspiring address, full of pearls and of new points of view for everyone. A feature of it was a salute to the New England council's accomplishments for New England.

Because we are one of an increasing number of observers who believe that southern industry's greatest eventual market must be the south itself and that the department of that market depends upon industrial policies directed always to improving the standard of living of the southern masses, we were happy to hear Mr. Penrose offer as a principal item of his program this: "Put thought, effort and money into raising the standards of living in the south, not as philanthropy or charity, but as a recognized promoter of better business and better dividends. Foster a sound program for relief of the tenant farmer . . . remembering that out of higher standards of living comes greater purchasing power."

And because we are one of an also increasing number who believe that the only healthy basis upon which industry can be invited to the south is what the south has to offer in natural resources, potential markets and distribution set-ups, we were happy to hear Mr. Penrose put much greater stress upon such things than upon artificial or impermanent advantages. He warned against new industries that might be mere "transients."

"Make sure they come to stay," he urged, "and have enough at stake to ensure their staying. Beware of special inducements. Let each community stand on its merits. Profit by painful examples. . . . They must be the right industries; the economic considerations are the only criteria."

WHO SHALL HOLD JOCKO?

There's an old saying that if you hold Jocko, he'll bite me, but if I hold Jocko he'll bite you. The point is—Right now the south and west hold the whip and these two propose to change the supreme court into their own creature. That is, the south and west are going to hold Jocko and make him bite the other fellow!

But what will happen when the other fellow gets the whip and holds Jocko? What will Jocko do to the south—will he bite her? Is Georgia going to surrender all her rights to a national congress and a supreme court? If so, what next? Why the veriest idiot knows!

1. The fourteenth amendment will be enforced—mixed schools, universities, hotels, boarding houses, railroad cars, buses. But are now pending in the United States courts to enforce these "rights."

2. The thirteenth amendment will be enforced and one-third of the south and one-half of Georgia will be dominated by the black race.

3. New laws, such as the Democrats in Pennsylvania and New York have just enacted, will be put upon South Carolina and Georgia, Mississippi and Alabama.

Men of the south be warned in time: The dog that brings a bone will carry a bone.

U. S. INVESTORS LEARN OF HUGE GERMAN DEBT

Official Says 'Unrecorded' Internal Obligations Doesn't Appear in Statement.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP)—The Securities Commission informed American investors today that the German government has huge "unrecorded" internal obligations which do not appear in its official statements of indebtedness.

It cited semi-official German figures placing the amount of such obligations at more than 5,000,000,000 reichsmarks (approximately $2,000,000,000). The Reich officially acknowledges a funded debt of 11,920,028,787 marks and a floating debt of 2,918,302,080.

The commission disclosed the indebtedness in announcing that a German registration in the United States of a $600,000,000 bond issue became effective today.

Offered in Exchange.

This issue is to be offered in exchange for unpaid interest coupons maturing between July 1, 1934, and December 31, 1936, on German securities previously sold in this country.

A statement by the Securities Commission explained that the German government had refused to include its "unrecorded" obligations in the registration required by law.

This refusal, it was said, did not warrant the issuance of a stop order against the registration, but the announcement added:

"However, in order that American security holders to whom this offering will be made, as well as subsequent purchasers of the bonds, may be assisted in making an intelligent appraisal of the merits of the offer or of the bonds, the commission considered that full publicity should be given to the existence of this body of 'unrecorded' obligations."

BERLIN OFFICIALS SILENT ON BIG DEBT REMOVED

BERLIN, March 2.—(AP)—The German foreign office, the Reichsbank and other official quarters today refused to comment on a Washington statement that Germany has a huge "secret debt" pending the receipt in Berlin of details of the statement.

The Securities and Exchange Commission announced in Washington that the German government has a $2,000,000,000 secret debt.

M'MILLAN PLANS NEW ARCTIC TRIP

Thirty Scientists and College Students To Join Noted Explorer.

BOSTON, March 2.—(AP)—Lieutenant Commander Donald H. MacMillan, noted explorer, today announced he would leave Boston June 19 on his sixteenth arctic expedition with a party of about 30 scientists and college students.

The expedition will sail on the famous Gloucester fishing schooner Gertrude L. Thebaud, long a rival of the schooner Bluenose of Lunenburg, N. S., for the international sailing championship of the north Atlantic fishing fleets. Captain Ben Pine, Gloucester's premier racing skipper and Thebaud's managing owner, will be aboard.

MacMillan said today he planned to penetrate the arctic circle as far as ice conditions would permit. He is particularly anxious to investigate the two ice caps on Baffin Island, believed remnants of the glacier which once covered New England and extended southward to Kentucky.

"No one knows," he said, "whether those ice caps now are advancing or retreating, or their area, for the interior of Baffin Land never has been explored. It will be necessary to use dog sleds for the work we plan there."

CANAL OPPONENT CITES SALT WATER DANGER

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP)—Representative J. Hardin Petersen, Lakeland, Fla., Democrat, pointed today to salt water encroachment on the fertile Sacramento-San Joaquin delta in California as an example of the possible effect of a ship canal across Florida. Members of a California delegation told the board of engineers at a hearing today the saline condition had been caused by deepening the Sacramento river to 30 feet. One of the principal objections to the Florida canal has been the fear that the waterway would pollute the fresh water streams.

25-YEAR THIEF CHASE NEARS ENDS IN BRITAIN

LONDON, March 2.—(AP)—Scotland Yard hummed excitedly tonight as detectives believed themselves near capture of that cycling demon-flannel foot, London's notorious burglar who's led them a merry chase for more than 25 years.

The burglar, who raided five houses in a row last night in Hayes, Middlesex, left fingerprints behind.

The intruder operated in typical flannel foot style, but wore rubber overshoes, rather than the flannel socks customarily used by the famed and almost phantom burglar. He escaped by bicycle.

YOUTH'S FEET FREEZE WHILE LOCKED IN CAR

PITTSBURGH, March 2.—(AP)—Sixteen-year-old William Clark, of Rochester, N. Y., crawled from a box car today, his feet frozen.

Pennsylvania Railroad employees heard his pounding and cries for help and freed him from the car in which he had been imprisoned without food since last Thursday.

The boy said from a hospital bed he had quarreled with his father, William Clark Sr., and had climbed into the car to sleep.

Quints Have Neighbors; Triplets, All Girls, Born

NORTH BAY, Ont., March 2.—(Canadian Press.)—The five little Dionne quintuplets have some new neighbors—the Brown triplets, all girls.

The triplets were born last night to Mrs. Jonathan Brown, a farm wife living 12 miles from Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne.

Mrs. Brown and her girls are "doing as well as can be expected," commented Dr. G. W. Smith, the attending physician.

The Brown girls weighed more at birth than their quintuplet neighbors did. The triplets' total weight was 18 pounds while the Dionne girls registered a total weight of 10 pounds, 2 1/4 ounces.

Blind Negro Slays Man He Never Saw

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 2.—(AP)—A blind negro, Robert Watts, was in jail today charged with killing another negro he never had seen.

Police said Watts admitted he slew Samuel Davis after an argument. The officers quoted him as saying he struck Davis at Davis with his pistol; that the gun fired, and his wife told him Davis was dead.

Davis' body was found hidden in an abandoned mine in outlying Coalburg.

The blind negro's wife and a negro man were held on "accessory after the fact" charges.

DUCE ORDER TO ARMS AWAITED BY ITALIANS

Militarized Nation Called for by Council in 5-Point Program.

ROME, March 2.—(AP)—Italians between the ages of 18 and 55 waited today for Premier Mussolini's summons to answer Great Britain's gigantic rearmament program—with a virtual lifetime of preparedness for war.

An "integrally militarized" Italy—with every Italian male fit for service and periodic mobilization—was ordered by the Fascist grand council tonight to meet any international contingency, whereas Britain's rearmament plans called for a counter-move to Britain's $7,500,000,000 five-year rearmament program.

Men of the five military classes between 1900 and 1904, believing they would fall under the mobilization plan announced February 21, watched their mail boxes for Mussolini's first summons since the new plan was decreed.

Sailors and aviators' reserve classes also expected to be called out.

It was explained that Italy, able to mobilize 8,000,000 troops according to Mussolini's boast last August, was already well enough manned on land to meet any international contingency, whereas Britain's rearmament plans called for a counter-move to Britain's $7,500,000,000 five-year rearmament program.

U. S. TO BAR MAILS TO LOTTERY NEWS

Postoffice Plans Drive Against Foreign, Domestic Gambling Schemes.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 2.—A campaign designed to bar from the mails all newspapers and other publications containing reports of Irish lottery, is harassing officials to activities will shortly be launched by the government, according to Karl A. Crowley, solicitor for the Postoffice Department.

His announcement follows an intensive drive by postal inspectors to break up both foreign and domestic lotteries based on race results, based on football games and other contests.

Inquiries from postmasters all over the country about material they think questionable is answered with a request to hold up the delivery of such matter until a decision is reached by Postmaster General Farley as to whether his "liberal interpretation" of the law is resulting in "abuses" that must be corrected.

A flood of foreign sweepstakes and lottery tickets, as well as the growth of contests for which prizes are offered under conditions that closely parallel lottery, is harassing officials to a point where an early decision as to policy is expected.

STOCKS MANIPULATION LAID TO C. C. WRIGHT

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP)—Evidence to show the widespread dissemination of securities market quotations by newspapers and news services was introduced at the Securities and Exchange Commission's hearing today on charges that Charles C. Wright and others manipulated stock of the Kinner Aircraft & Engine Company on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange.

The testimony was brought out in an effort to rebut the respondents' contention that stock exchange transactions are instantaneous, rather than interstate in character.

Claude A. Jagger, financial editor of the Associated Press, said the securities quotation service is tabulated in New York by a special staff from 16 stock and bond tickers.

HEAVY TOLL IS TAKEN AS FASCISTS ATTACK AT MOUNT PINGARRON

Rebels Charge Across Jarama Under Cover of Terrific Artillery Barrage.

MADRID, (Wednesday) March 2. (UP)—Rebel attackers charged across the Jarama plain under cover of a terrific artillery barrage today in a desperate maneuver to turn back hard-fought defenders who yesterday hurled themselves out of their trenches in a mighty counter-attack.

Rain Shrouds Attack. While rain and thick clouds shrouded their movements, Rebel General Francisco Franco's picked troops drove forward against Morata de Tajuna, Perales del Rio and Vallecas.

Rebel troops opened a savage bombardment shortly before midnight. Immediately Loyalist artillery replied. Machine guns and hand grenades added to the clatter.

Huge losses were reported as the Rebels swarmed down from Mount Pingarron and attempted to take Morata where government troops were strongly entrenched.

Fighting on All Fronts. Rebel troops from Maranosa pushed toward Perales. Fighting raged unchecked on all fronts to the south.

The mass attack was interpreted as a Rebel attempt to stem the Loyalist advance on four fronts, which began in an effort to draw Rebel troops away from Madrid.

ture of vice conditions, pointing out that persons who live secluded lives do not realize the "alarming extent to which we have been overworked with women of low character," and that "one out of three is infected with disease."

"So, it is not only with the view of promoting better law enforcement that we are trying to clean up this situation, but we have in mind also the public health," he said.

"As I said before, there are thousands of 'beast' various disorders and criminal characters who will never like the present administration."

Backed by Voters. "But there are some 30,000 permanently registered voters," he continued, "in the main, the best element of our city."

"They are the real bosses of the mayor and the general council, not the hundreds of idlers, loafers and flies who spend their days hanging around joints and dives, engaging in loud talk about how our city ought to be run."

Saying that he "took office at a time when the problems of finances and law enforcement could be ignored no longer," the mayor touched upon the matter of raising revenue.

"In the matter of raising revenue to run a great city, everybody is agreed that it takes money to operate a town, but practically nobody wants to be the one to pay it."

He also mentioned the Sunday beer-sales ordinance, pointing out that it is "one concession that the sellers of such beverages ought to make to decency and our church people, and the great majority of our legitimate beer dealers thoroughly approve it."

Touching the traffic problem, the mayor praised the citizenry for its fine spirit of co-operation, and said "we hope to cut down the awful death rate of our city."

He concluded by referring to his speech as a "little heart-to-heart talk" and said that "Atlanta stands at the threshold of a period of advancement such as we have never before seen."

ROCKDALE LEADERS MAP PROGRAM FOR AWARDS VICTORY

Civic leaders and citizens from every walk of life were urged to join the county-wide movement as the board adopted the following program:

1. Complete remodeling and renovation of the courthouse and erection of a new federal building by the government with G. C. Sims, chairman.

2. Increased economy in county government "to the end that every dollar result in some noticeable achievement" and a balanced budget, W. Tharpe Baldwin, chairman.

3. Vigorous development of farm-to-market roads, featuring all weather roads, with W. F. Richardson, chairman.

4. Increased co-operation with the state board of public health in control of contagious diseases and improved sanitary conditions, with Dr. P. J. Brown, chairman.

7. Continued improvement and additional consolidation of schools and increased co-operation between churches, with C. J. Hicks and J. Walton Stewart as co-chairmen.

Size an Advantage. "Being a small county, Rockdale is in a position to win first place in the contest," Editor Towns said.

"Once the civic pride of our citizens is awakened many important improvements in county affairs will be made. Rockdale might easily become the model county of Georgia and in this way win a much greater prize than is offered by The Atlanta Constitution."

An established reputation as a progressive and improved county would be something that would mean much more to Rockdale than the winning of the $3,500 first award.

In addition to the commissioners, other officers of the county joined in the appeal to citizens to co-operate fully in "Rockdale's drive for the first award."

The other officers are Sheriff J. F. Cook, Ordinary Luther Morris, County Clerk Luther McDowell, Tax Collector S. J. Kelley, Tax Receiver Dan

Many Amendments. Numerous amendments made to the bill were agreed to by Senators Milligan and Ennis who guided the legislation on the floor.

The house adjourned a few minutes before 5 o'clock, but the bill was not yet ready for a vote when the senate-approved "fair trade act" stirred up a long debate involving the chain store issue.

The bill, originally introduced by Senator Lindsay of Decatur, authorizes contracts between manufacturers of trade-marked articles and retailers for maintenance of minimum retail prices.

John C. Parker, of Colquitt county, sponsoring the measure in the house, said it was designed to prevent use of nationally advertised products at "loss leader sales," and that "it will be aimed primarily at chain buying."

Mrs. Helen Douglas Mankin, of Fulton county, declared it was "the best of all bills," and she hoped to help the small merchant by permitting him to make purchases on the same basis as "the big fellows."

From Sabados, of Dougherty county, said he objected to the bill as a means of raising the cost of living. "Last week," he declared, "when we debated the chain store tax for two days, proponents of the measure told us it was impossible to buy things any cheaper in a chain store than in an independent store. This bill is not consistent with their stand."

"This bill makes it possible to raise the cost of living to every person."

After the debate had progressed for nearly an hour, a motion for adjournment was carried without dissent, and the question will come up again today.

EUROPE IS GRATIFIED BY STEEL SETTLEMENT

Continent Had Feared Industrial War; Nazis Alone Are Cool.

(Copyright, 1937, by United Press.) LONDON, March 2.—(UP)—Statesmen in major European capitals were relieved tonight to learn of the United States Steel Corporation's decision to accept collective bargaining for the first time in an "American industrial war" which might impede world economic recovery.

Relief was concretely evidenced in the sharp rise of transatlantic issues on the London Stock Exchange where United States Steel took the lead, jumping from 113 1/2 to 118 3/4.

Great Victory. If other industrial concerns join United States Steel in jettisoning their ancient policy of refusing to accept collective bargaining, it will be regarded by British trade unions as one of the greatest victories in the history of the American labor movement.

In Britain, the principle of collective bargaining has been established generally for half a century, but the 40-hour week is yet only a trade union objective.

The United Press Paris bureau reported that French trade union circles were delighted by the adoption of the 40-hour week. Although both this and collective bargaining are already in force in France, the 40-hour week is still in its infancy.

Germany Cool. The adoption of collective bargaining in America met with a cooler reception in German Nazi circles.

It was pointed out that Germany adopted and practiced collective bargaining until the Nazis came into power and dissolved trade unions and employers' organizations.

The United Press bureau in Rome reported that authoritative opinion among scholars in social law and leaders in corporate organizations regarded the United States Steel settlement as not only a major victory for the American labor movement, but the clearest move made by capital in the United States.

for the purpose of reaching similar agreements.

The agreement signed today expires February 28, 1938.

End of Company Unions. The unionists' representatives for conduct of the end of company unions (employees' representation plans).

Murray will head a committee of seven or eight men who will meet with representatives of the company to conduct further negotiations provided in the contract.

He said his organization will confer before the end of the week with the Carnegie-Illinois 27 plants for the purpose of preparing proposals, adding:

"We will expedite the work of the March 10 conference so that each of the employees will know the rates which they will receive or the rates they will perform."

Company Silent. The companies declined to make any comment as to what they had done yesterday when the unheralded conferences began.

Carnegie-Illinois issued its wage announcement during the conference, saying it was granting all of its workers the increase in pay, raising the minimum for common labor from 52 1/2 to 62 1/2 cents an hour and paying time and one-half for work after eight hours in a day or 40 hours in a week.

At New York, Lewis disclosed the pact had been made possible by conversations involving himself and Mr. C. I. Taylor, head of the vast corporation. Lewis added:

"Labor, industry and the nation will be the beneficiaries."

List of Companies. Other companies, which announced similar action, and the number of men involved, included:

National Steel, 20,000; Bethlehem Steel, 8,000; Republic of Westinghouse, 10,000; Inland, 9,000; National Tube, another United States Steel subsidiary, 8,000; Pittsburgh Steel, 7,000; Sharon Steel, Wheeling Steel, 6,000; Carnegie-Illinois and the Otis Steel Company.

The Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation, employing 25,000, announced it would establish 85-a-day minimum pay for steel workers. It said a 40-hour week proposal was under consideration.

Steel observers saw two immediate results of today's announcements: First, collapse of the deadlock between steel mills and the navy over the producers' refusal to bid on steel contracts under the terms of the Walsh-Healey act.

Second, a price advance in steel of between $2 and $6 a ton.

The navy announced it would send out new advertisements tonight for 20,000 tons of steel to be used in ship buildings, and Carnegie-Illinois already had announced it would publish its new steel price schedules Friday.

The unprecedented meeting between a representative of "big steel" and Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization climaxed an eight-month organization drive against Carnegie-Illinois. The committee had enrolled 200,000 steel workers.

PERKINS GRATIFIED BY PARLEY WITH C. I. O. WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP)—Secretary Perkins said today she was "very much gratified" with the decision of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation to meet John L. Lewis' steel workers' organizing committee to discuss wages and hours.

"Wisdom," she said, led to this "change of heart."

Gary Cooper, Luise Rainer Slated For 1936 Motion Picture Awards

Annual Academy Banquet Will Be Held Tonight, With Hollywood Awaiting Announcement of Winners; Best Picture Also To Be Named.

HOLLYWOOD, March 2.—(AP)—The movie colony engaged in its most serious and absorbing business tonight, picking the men, women, pictures and achievements for the 1936 awards of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Today and tomorrow are election days. "Oscar" comes to town Thursday night. "Oscar" is the name film folk have attached to the gold statuettes which are given the winners at the annual academy banquet, the blue ribbon, super-social extravaganza, each Hollywood star has a hand in the election.

Luise Rainer, for her part in "The Great Ziegfeld," and Gary Cooper for "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," had the conversational edge for the acting awards in Hollywood tonight. The academy voting is secret, but that pair ruled unopposed.

Election Mechanics. The mechanics of the election entail a nomination of candidates in each of the many divisions of movie making, the mailing to academy members of ballots, and the marking and return of votes.

In the women's division for best performances for 1936 are Miss Rainer, Gladys George, for "Valiant Is the Word for Carrie," Irene Dunne for "Theodora Goes Wild," Norma Shearer for "Romeo and Juliet," and Charles Laughton for "My Man Godfrey."

Candidates in the actors' group are Cooper, Paul Muni for "The Story of Louis Pasteur," Walter Huston for "Dodsworth," and Spencer Tracy for "San Francisco."

One of these ten pictures will be named the best production for the year.

"Anthony Adverse," "Dodsworth," "The Great Ziegfeld," "Labelled Lady," "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," "Romeo and Juliet," "San Francisco," "The Story of Louis Pasteur," "A Tale of Two Cities," and "Three Smart Girls."

Movie colony sentiment tonight favored Miss Rainer, with Charles Laughton a strong contender and Norma Shearer an outside chance.

Cooper had a slight edge over William Powell, with Walter Huston considered a dark horse.

The ten-entry race for "best production" award is, in some ways, the big event of the academy voting, centering more attention and keener rivalry than any of the groups in which individual work is adjudged.

Generally, Hollywood votes for "big-scale" movies of "The Great Ziegfeld," "San Francisco," "Anthony Adverse" type. These three, this year, appeared the favorites, with little to choose between them. "Romeo and Juliet" is expected to make a strong bid for the honor.

Occasionally, however, a small-scale film wins, as in the case of "It Happened One Night," several years ago. Should this occur this year, movie folk believe the prize will go either to "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" or "Dodsworth."

CHARGES ARE HURLED AT RELIEF INQUIRY

public welfare. One, he said, operates two boarding houses and "goes on trips to Florida in her car," while the other is a owner of real estate worth $25,000. "I think," Lee said, "sometimes makes as much as $1,000 a day."

Lee turned over handwritten reports of an investigation he asserted he conducted.

"These people here tonight are not the ones for you to get your information from," Alderman Carpenter said. "You should call the case workers at the welfare department and get the records. One employee who drew $7.50 a week for food for his family told me he made 900 trips to homes of negroes to every one white person's home."

Alderman Carpenter and Miss Elizabeth Ivey, city relief director, will be asked to appear before another session of the relief probe committee at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night. Chairman Gilliam asked also that "others with facts about mismanagement and waste" appear but that complaints only about amount of relief would not be heard as they are irrelevant.

Members of the board of public welfare and officials of the department will be called before the committee at a later session. J. Sid Tiller, former chairman of the public welfare board, asked last night that the probe be thorough. In reply to questions, Tiller explained that the department had 17 workers but had discharged 40 of them. The WPA supplies part of the pay roll in return for WPA certifications and relief work.

There are more than 10,000 persons on emergency relief and case workers cannot possibly visit all homes every week. They have to investigate also new applicants for relief and this takes time. When a relief case becomes chronic, they visit the home more infrequently," Tiller declared.

Two women witnesses, Mrs. Alice Bailey, of 395 Capitol avenue, and Mrs. Sam Tanner, of the same address, said they had signed receipts for bedding which they did not get. A. C. Jones, of 240 Luckie street, declared his name was forged to a receipt for a quarter of a ton of coal which he did not receive.

Though Carpenter charged negroes were getting too much relief after having been investigated by negro case workers, half a dozen negroes appeared at the meeting to state they were receiving only $2 to $4 per month and one declared "I know many negroes who are starving because they can't get relief."

A white man said the "whole problem can be solved by stopping aid to mothers of illegitimate children" and giving this money to deserving persons.

Carpenter spoke for a few minutes last night and exhibited photographs of what he asserted goes on at relief headquarters at 160 Pryor street but for committee asked him to make his full statement at the meeting Thursday night.

Cost of administering relief; salaries of employees and amount of relief to unemployed will be asked of the board of public welfare later.

Committee members present last night in addition to Chairman Gilliam were Councilman E. A. Minor; Stephens Mitchell, lawyer; J. A. Harper, president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades; Will L. Hancock, apartment house operator; and W. P. Archer, businessman. Councilman Frank Wilson, member of the committee, was absent.

NAVY URGES INDUSTRY TO TAKE STEEL'S LEAD

Service Still Unable To Get Some Materials Due to Walsh-Healey Act.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP)—The navy appealed to half a dozen industries tonight to "follow the lead of steel" in conforming with provisions of the Walsh-Healey government contracts law.

Charles Edison, assistant secretary, expressed gratification at the action of some steel firms in adopting the 40-hour week pending the filling government orders. He said not all of the problems facing the navy had been solved, however, by the prospect that its acute steel shortage now may be lifted.

"Some articles that the navy, up to the present time, has been unable to obtain through bids," he explained, "include machine tools, hydraulic press for ordnance equipment, Diesel-driven electric generators, refrigerating and air-conditioning machinery, electric outlet and feeder boxes and twine."

The conduct of an expedition and efficient large-scale ship-building program demands a constant and uninterrupted flow of all materials in accordance with a pre-arranged time schedule of deliveries.

On six destroyers and three submarines has been delayed for weeks by the navy's inability to buy steel. At one time the navy asked Secretary Perkins, Walsh-Healey administrator, to exempt the industry. Perkins refused, protesting vehemently and she refused.

The navy announced that new bids for 9,000 tons of steel needed immediately would soon be requested.

LEWIS UNION OPPOSES MINE NATIONALIZATION

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP)—The United Mine Workers joined both soft and hard coal operators today in opposing the proposal of Representative Stephen Duggan, Progressive, of West Virginia, for federal purchase and operation of the mines.

Spokesmen for all three divisions of the industry told newsmen they felt the bill would drive the house away from means of production.

Southoff, pointing out that the Guffey measure aims to boost soft coal wages by lifting coal costs, said: "That merely shifts a burden from one class of unfortunate to another. I prefer to remove the burden entirely."

LEAGUE URGES LIFTING OF BARRIERS TO TRADE TO MEET NAZI DEMAND

Geneva Also Advocates Mandating of Sources of Raw Materials.

GENEVA, March 2.—(AP)—Removal of obstacles to the international exchange of goods was proposed by the League of Nations today as the surest remedy for existing inequalities in nations' access to needed raw materials.

In a memorandum prepared for the international conference on raw materials, scheduled to open here March 8, the League emphasized that the obstacles include trade prohibitions, export quotas and duties, high tariffs, general import quotas and clearing agreements.

The conference, League sources said, appears especially important because of Germany's demand for return of her war-lost colonies in order to have easy and inexpensive access to raw materials. The Reich, however, has refused to participate in the Geneva meeting.

The League also suggested generalization in all colonial territories of the "open door" policy and transformation of colonies into League mandated territories.

The memorandum also suggested

"Britain would not have emerged a victor from the World War except for assistance from the United States before and after her entrance," the Earl declared.

He emphasized the importance of American neutrality legislation in connection with raw materials and foodstuffs and urged closer co-operation between the two nations to prevent a European or far-eastern war.

distribution of the world's raw materials on an international basis.

The British commonwealth, including the dominions, is the chief producer of raw materials, the League said. France and her colonies were placed second, the Netherlands third, the United States fourth and Russia fifth.

Some countries, inadequately provided with raw materials, have resorted "by resorting to a policy of economic autarchy," the memorandum added.

U. S. TOBACCO SALES TO NAZIS DROP 95 PER CENT

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP)—American Vice Consul W. C. Afield Jr., stationed at Bremen, Germany, reported today the inability of German importers to obtain foreign exchange is reducing their trade in American tobacco to the vanishing point.

Afield reported arrivals of American tobacco in Bremen during January totaled only 202,730 pounds, a decrease of 95 per cent compared with the preceding month and 95 per cent compared with January, 1936.

The report represented Bremen importers as hopeful for promulgation of regulations whereby tobacco may be bartered.

Palestine Masonic Lodge Marks 31st Anniversary of Founding

Past Masters of Famous Organization Are Entertained at Dinner by Founder; Elaborate Program Is Scheduled for Friday Night Session.

Celebration of the 31st anniversary of the Palestine lodge, one of the best known in southern Masonry, began last night when the past masters of the lodge were entertained at dinner by Dr. A. H. Van Dyke, who organized the lodge 31 years ago.

The first meeting was held on March 2, 1906. Last night the three officers who served the lodge that year were seated at the head table with Dr. Van Dyke, with Judge Thomas H. Jeffries, who aided the lodge in his capacity of an officer of the state organization; and Paul L. Wier, the present master.

The three officers of 1906 were: Dr. W. L. Champion, master; John A. Hynds, senior warden, and J. A. Warren, junior warden. Only 15 of the original 50 charter members survive.

It was a historic meeting last night in which all of them spoke. The greatest reception, perhaps, were for John A. Hynds, the eloquent lawyer who is a tradition in Georgia Masonry; for Dr. Van Dyke, who

A son, L. G. Hardman Jr., and the widow were named executors.

Under the will, the estate is to remain undivided for 10 years, with the income to be distributed among the five heirs. The residence was left to the widow and unmarried daughters as long as they remain single.

Hardman's medical library was left to Sue Colquitt Hardman. Value of the estate was not mentioned. Former Governor Hardman died in a hospital in Atlanta recently.

PEGGY'S MATE FACES CHARGE OF DEFRAUDING

La Rocca Accused of Not Paying Woman $56 Hotel Bill.

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP)—Trouble piled up today around Michael La Rocca, husband of the blond hat-check girl, Peggy Garcia, who sued Dave Rubinoff unsuccessfully for $500,000 worth of breach of promise.

La Rocca, who is now accused of having two wives, pleaded not guilty in general sessions to a charge of bigamy. At the same time Eugene V. Foster, a state trooper from Catskill, N. Y., filed a John Doe warrant in the Tombs, charging La Rocca with having defrauded Mrs. Annie V. Murtha, proprietor of a hotel in Athens, N. Y., of lodging bills aggregating $56.

Blood Peggy, who withdrew her suit against the radio violinist when an earlier marriage in Virginia was revealed, is still in jail on a bigamy charge, waiting for bail.

La Rocca asked that his own bail of $2,500 be reduced to $1,000 but his motion was denied by Judge Saul S. Street when Assistant District Attorney Simpson told the court that there was an additional charge of perjury brewing.

A brunette bobbed into the complicated situation when Mrs. Murtha, who was in court, said a man believed to be La Rocca came to her establishment, the Gray Point hotel, four years ago with a dark-haired young woman and left without dropping by the desk to pick up a tab for $48.

Last July, she added, a man she thought was the same one arrived, this time with a blonde, but both left hurriedly, leaving a bill for $8 when gestures were made toward collecting the initial indebtedness.

La Rocca was returned to the Tombs, in default of bail.

Automobile accidents killed 947 Georgians during 1936, revised statistics of the Census Bureau revealed last night.

Throughout the entire United States, 38,573 persons were killed in auto wrecks last year, it was announced. This is an increase of 550 over 1935. The 1935 figure for Georgia was 13 less than the 1936.

INSTALLMENT XXXIX.

He guessed why she was hiding and understood the purpose of her rummaging through his papers. Somehow, Elsie had got on the track of his secret activities. She was trying now to secure proof and although she would undoubtedly fail she would in the last extremity raise the sort of hue and cry best calculated to start a governmental investigation. He sent Haji to Floyd's square to ascertain whether she intended to return to her lodgings, and if her room contained a gas fire. Haji was growing nervous about undertaking further commissions and Blundell, troubled about the Dutch visa on his passport, agreed to pay his pass-ge to Bombay on the boat sailing next day, provided Haji would perform two additional services.

The fact was that Blundell felt it vitally important to know precisely what Diana was going to divulge in her first interview with the private detective. He also wanted Haji to break into Mrs. Eales' house from the rear and ransack Elsie's trunk. Blundell did not know that Haji, through Woodward, had come to frequent the tearoom which all the prince regent's staff patronized, and where Diana and Adrian had been accustomed to meet. On the face of it, the Indian seemed to him a perfectly safe individual to employ as a spy and yet he was spotted by Bream, recognized by Diana, and the clew to his identity quickly seized! That was bad enough but the midnight venture in the Islington alley was notably worse. The luckless Haji was seen and almost colared by the very detective whose suspicions he had aroused. The report of these things received at three in the morning convinced Blundell of a very real peril. Haji might easily be terrorized into damaging admissions.

Blundell advised Haji to reach Tilbury by an early train, see his luggage aboard, and come ashore. He, Blundell, would drive down and meet him to hand over the promised cash payment, but he must make sure of Haji's departure and not, as he put it, be led up the garden path. The two must not be seen together, therefore they would meet in a lonely lane outside the town. Haji agreed to the arrangements. The morning was foggy.

There was a surprise onslaught, an unequal struggle, and the Indian lay dead in a ditch, shot by his own pearl-handled revolver. His passport was removed, his dead fingers closed on the weapon, and no marks or prints left behind to show that murder had been committed.

Elsie, meantime, continued to elude capture. Blundell believed now that she meant to keep in seclusion till the trial opened, then claim police protection while she gave evidence. Elsie must go. The vendetta must be avenge, for which belief her seemingly erratic behavior had so luckily paved the way.

The Floyd's Square house became familiar to Blundell during repeated prowling by day and by night. When Mrs. Eales and her little boy went away, he read the note left for the home-coming tenant, and knew his reward was at hand. Next evening, getting off early from the dinner he was attending, he again entered the dark, empty house. He waited for Elsie to come in, never dreaming of the meeting between her and Diana, or the fact that at this moment she was depositing a parcel of newspapers at King's Cross.

He heard her letting herself in and made ready for her. No sooner had her dim form appeared in the doorway than he forced her powerfully against the wall and with one hand pinioning her two gloved hands he drew her into the chloroform within an inch of her mouth and nostrils. She struggled violently but was matched for his strength. One stifled scream she gave as the vapor gagged her and presently her convulsive movements ceased. He laid her unconscious body on the floor facing the hearth, removed her hat and gloves. He adjusted a cowl of paper round her head, turned the gas full on, and left her to die of asphyxiation.

He had committed four murders, two of them extempore affairs, yet in no instance had he left one shred of evidence traceable to himself. A splendid achievement! Nicholas Blundell, respectable solicitor, was a Napoleon of crime as of strategy.

His exultation was marred by only a single regret, a bitter one, when he considered his peculiar though typical weakness: There was no one, no one to whom he could recount his triumphs. To this end his supreme cleverness must go unapplauded. When his paroxysm of blind rage allowed him to give himself away to Diana the circumstances must have brought him a glorious relief. Now, at last, he could recount his exploits and do so with utter safety.

"Oiled hinges," mused Inspector Headcorn with the mellow detachment of one whose mental hinges are becoming well lubricated. "Blundell shouldn't have spirited away that oil bottle so late in the day. It might have meant nearly as bad a slip as neglecting to look to his locks and bolts before holding a board meeting—eh, Bream?"

"I'm not the one to cast stones at him for that last bit of carelessness," answered the agent ruefully, and as he spoke he laid a gingerly hand on his wounded thigh. "Considering the late hour and the fact that Miss Lake was supposed to be doped he'd a better excuse than I had for my little slip."

"Uncovering the Penge fraud wouldn't have proved Blundell guilty of murder—and how long would it have taken us to uncover it? If Blundell ever purchased a foot of land in his own name I've not been able to locate it. He had his men to straw acting for him and he was protected at all points. No, a non-professional detective, the audios in this case." Gallantly he raised his fourth dose of the Ladbroke prescription toward the girl in bed. "I take pleasure in saying it—and I beg leave to drink her good health and future happiness."

"And so say all of us," grunted the inspector, tilting his glass. "My congratulations, Miss Lake."

Diana blushed warmly and avoided Blundell's eyes.

"And how much health or future anything should I have had but for you others?" she retorted. "Meddling's not clever. I had a luckier break than my predecessor had, but that's the most you can say."

"One thing's always puzzled me," remarked Colin. "Why didn't Blundell have Mrs. Somerville's body cremated?"

"I'll answer that one," said Diana. "She wanted to be buried in that Berkshire churchyard, under a particular willow tree. She had her mind set on a pink marble tombstone with a list of her famous parts inscribed on it. It wouldn't have looked well, would it, to disregard her known wishes?"

"Besides," put in Adrian quietly, "once that rather fuzzy-headed diagnosis was given he'd no reason to suppose the death would be queried."

The others looked at him. It was the first contribution and he still sat constrained and with a faint suggestion of aloofness, eyes for the most part directed at the floor. One might have said that during his time of solitary confinement he had lost the habit of speech.

"What you say brings up another small point," said Colin. "Do you suppose Blundell timed the thing to occur while Mrs. Somerville's own doctor was out of town?"

Adrian had no idea; but Bream gave a knowing nod.

"This much I'll tell you: Cross, the partner they called in is Blundell's K. P.—and when I talked to him I got a very strong impression that in some ways he's indebted to his patient. Now, then, would a man in that position, hoping for further benefits, be anxious to cause inconvenience?"

"Not another one! Blundell seems to have made this a hobby," Colin turned to Diana. "Didn't you mention something of the kind?"

"But of course," replied Diana calmly. "It was his life policy. He took pains to describe to me exactly how he managed people and got them on his side. He said the great lesson he'd learned was that every human being had his price—that they had only to discover what his particular weakness was and cater to it in order to disarm him and make him your slave. It made him feel himself a superman, holding the strings, making people dance to his tune, and despoiling them for it. He told me Lord Limsfield himself was under his thumb. Sir Norbury Penge was just an attractive lay figure boosted to the limelight, but controlled from behind scenes. Why, even Sir Kingsley Baxter he regarded as his to command! Every one was to be under his hypnotic spell, then?"

"Speaking of spells," broke in Colin, "how many of us taxpayers ever thought to inquire who'd create this new ministry, or the man to fill it? For that matter, wasn't it sheer hypocrisy that made the man in the street accept unquestioningly those thousand and one unwanted highways?"

MANNERS OF THE MOMENT

Some women are just made to block public stairways.

It is hard to know what to do about the women who cling to both railings of a public stairway. You can't jump over them, and you can't knock them down. And yet there's many a time when you wish you could get past them. They are invariably slow movers.

You really should try your best to control yourself, and stay peacefully behind them, because they are usually women who need support on both sides. But it's dreadfully hard... especially if you're meeting Harry on a street corner and you're already 15 minutes late.

Sometimes you'll find that you can crawl under one of the lady's arms. Just to make her feel better about it, you should look up at her as you go through and say, "I hope you will forgive the intrusion, or something of the sort. She'll be a bit startled, but she won't have time to answer you before you have reached the exit."

Another way to get around her would be to call her attention to something back of her. Tell her she has dropped her handkerchief, or that some one behind seems to want to speak to her. She'll drop one hand from the railing as she turns, and you sneak by... if you're fast.

But I don't know that it is worth all the effort. Maybe you'd just better accept the lady as a filler in the way as one of life's hardships and let her go at that.

UNCLE RAY'S CORNER

STRANGE BIRDS.

III—The Ruffs.

In the time of Queen Elizabeth, both men and women in England wore ruffled collars known as "ruffs." Perhaps we should say gentlemen in a long suit by showing himself on the ground, right in front of his fair lady. If she flies away, as is likely, he follows to her next landing place.

Often two ruffs want the same mate, and in this case there is also sure to come a fight. The ruffs spring at each other, and peck as hard as they can. The frills are stretched wide, and shield the fighters. The birds have been compared to game-cocks, but they have no spurs, and seldom do much damage, but sooner or later, one of the fighters gives up the battle.

With all the trouble a ruff takes to win his mate, we might think he would guard and care for her in later weeks, but this is not the case. Instead of taking turns sitting on the nest, as many male birds do, he flies away on his own errands. He does not take any pains to protect the nest from the attack of an enemy.

Ruff's nest most commonly in northern parts of Europe and Asia. They have breeding grounds in England and Scotland, too, in the Orkney and Shetland islands. Now and then they are found nesting in Canada and northeastern parts of the United States. In the autumn they fly southward.

Solution to Yesterday's Puzzle.

OPERATION PERFORMED ON WIDOW OF TRADER, ACCUSED OF MURDER

Woman, Critically Ill, Blames Poisoning; Doctor Says 'Bad Intestines.'

SALISBURY, Md., March 2.—(AP)—Mrs. Jeannette B. Trader, charged with the first-degree murder of her husband, was taken from the Salisbury jail to a hospital operating table today and her post-operative condition tonight was described as critical.

Mrs. Trader, awaiting trial before the Worcester county circuit court later this month, was in such a serious condition that Judge Benjamin A. Johnson expressed "extreme apprehension" over her chances of recovery.

Moved to Penitentiary. Judge Johnson ordered Mrs. Trader's removal from the Snow Hill jail to the new "penitentiary" jail here after she was taken ill in her cell.

Dr. J. McFadden Dick, chief surgeon of the Peninsula General hospital, performed the operation late today. He reported to Judge Johnson the operation disclosed a "mass of bad intestinal adhesions." Dr. Dick refused to discuss the case.

Charged Poisoning. Mrs. Trader's husband, Clarence J. Trader, Stockton utilities executive, was found in his home, fatally shot, January 14. Mrs. Trader told police her husband killed himself, but a special grand jury later indicted her for his murder.

Last week, after her illness in the Snow Hill jail, Mrs. Trader claimed her food had been poisoned. Sheriff Ernest C. West emphatically denied her charge, and asserted she ate a combination of peanuts, bananas and pork chops, brought her by her son, Richard, and became ill a few hours later.

SENTENCE UPHELD. Former Alabama Police Chief Loses Pleas. MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 2.—(AP)—The Alabama court of appeals affirmed today a five-year sentence for Ernest Davis, former police chief of Slomcomb, Ala., convicted of first-degree manslaughter.

Davis was convicted in Geneva circuit court November 27, 1935, of killing Tippy Cotton at a house near the Slomcomb city limits, while Davis was serving as police chief.

Record of the case showed Davis testified he went to the house to quell a disturbance, which others said at the trial Cotton was causing. He testified he attempted to arrest Cotton, the latter struck him, and he shot in self-defense.

Asserting the lower court's judgment, the court of appeals said there was no evidence Davis identified himself as an officer before shooting.

HOUSE VOTES VICTIM PAY. WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP)—The house passed and sent to the senate today a bill to pay $1,500 to Etta Natsky, of Chicago, a bystander shot in the thigh at the time federal agents killed John Dillinger outside a Chicago theater in 1934.

Charles Riddell, who said he was a University of California student, is shown as he was confronted by a capital policeman in front of the Supreme Court building at Washington, where he was selling "The Nine Old Men," a book satirizing the justices of the tribunal. 7 Escape Devil's Island To British Possession. GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, March 2.—(AP)—Seven convicts who escaped from the French penal settlement at Cayenne, French Guiana, (Devil's Island), were held today by police, who said they might be deported.

They landed in their rough dugout Saturday on the bank of the Corentyne river, 120 miles from here, exhausted after several days on tossing seas.

All the food they could get as they fled was lost when a wave capsized their little craft. They clung to the dugout for an hour and finally righted it.

After landing, they pushed through miles of dense jungle to reach a settlement.

'The Wind and the Rain' For Federal Theater. The Federal theater, allied with the Atlanta Theater Guild, under the direction of Will Price, will present "The Wind and the Rain," by Merton Hodge, at the Atlanta theater, opening next Tuesday evening for a three-day run.

Merton Hodge, the author, who successfully adapted "Men in White" for the stage, shows in this comedy the loves, laughs and sorrows tending to develop the character of a typical collegian during a four-year medical course in the University of Edinburgh. The romantic element is strong, yet the story is true and the development sound.

Irving Waugh, the leading man, will make his debut to Atlanta audiences in this production. He is from Savannah. Mr. Waugh has done some outstanding work in summer stock and should play the part of Charles with great feeling and artistry.

Vera Thomas, who plays the part of the dour Scotch landlady, will be remembered by Federal theater audiences for an excellent portrayal of Mrs. Perkins in "Around the Corner."

Byrd Strickland, Evelyn Eden, Gilbert Maxwell, Lionel Dante, David Leight, Harry Lee and Bruer Masingle complete the cast.

VANDENBERG ATTACKS F.D.R. COURT PROPOSAL

Senator Logan and Representative Summers Defend Revision Plan.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP)—Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, a leader in the senate's regular Republican wing, swung into the battle against the Roosevelt court reorganization bill tonight. He denounced the proposal as "a device that can choke the life out of free American institutions."

His radio address was made at the close of day which saw Senator Logan, Democrat, Kentucky, endorse the presidential measure and Representative Summers, Democrat, Texas, assert, in the house, that the way is open for members of the supreme bench to retire and thus be "co-operating with their government."

Speaks for G. O. P. Aside from brief, informal statements to reporters, the Vandenberg address was the first statement of position to emanate from the regular Republican faction in the senate. Up until now that group had left the opposition largely to members of the President's own party.

Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, also an opponent of the bill, said man's views on economic principles or theories are not at all related to age. Senator Minton, Democrat, Indiana, a supporter of the bill, asked whether one member approved but court "hasn't averaged one opinion a year for the last five years."

Senator Brown, Democrat, Michigan, a member of the uncommitted group, also spoke by radio. He expressed sympathy with the President's objective, criticized recent supreme court decisions, and predicted a compromise solution.

"I cannot bring my mind to agree that the executive under authority from the congress should be given the power to add six members to a nine-man court with the obvious intent to change the views of the court," he said. "I do not think it necessary."

Senator Brown favored a constitutional amendment providing that the supreme court could not hold an act of congress unconstitutional only if seven of the nine judges so decide.

"It imposes on the court a rule of constitutional determination that the supreme court has always approved but seldom followed," he said. "The rule is that a law passed by a legislative body shall not be held invalid unless its invalidity is beyond all reasonable question."

Brady, New York theatrical producer, petitioned the United States circuit court today to allow him an appeal, as a stockholder, from the decree of District Judge Oliver B. Brady and his theatrical corporation, Brady Enterprises, Inc., owning 2,300 shares of Baldwin common stock, claims terms of the reorganization plan are unfair, and no reorganization is needed.

Strong Possibility of Murder Seen In Slaying of Hollywood Scenarist

District Attorney Doubts Pearson Was Shot Accidentally in Drunken Scuffle Over Gun With Wife; Paraffin Test Is Cited.

RIVERSIDE, Cal., March 2.—(AP)—District Attorney Redwine said today he was "proceeding on the theory there is a strong possibility of murder" in the shooting of Screen Writer Humphrey Pearson.

Dissatisfied with the theory Pearson was shot accidentally in a drunken scuffle with his wife over a pistol, Redwine said a murder theory procedure demanded answers to three questions:

Why a paraffin test taken of the hands of Mr. and Mrs. Pearson after his death indicated either their hands had been washed or neither had fired a shot?

Why was the gun placed in a drawer in a bathroom some distance from the bedroom in which the shooting occurred at their Palm Springs desert cottage last Wednesday night?

Since evidence indicated two shots had been fired, one bullet crashing into the bedroom ceiling, why had Alfred Blackman, the Pearsons' negro butler, failed to hear a shot?

Sheriff Rayburn, who supports the accidental shooting theory, pointed out that the Pearson house had unusually thick walls to insulate it against desert heat. A deputy stood in the room where Blackman said Pearson was shot and the officer could not hear test shots fired in the bedroom, Rayburn said.

"Story Doesn't Jibe." "Mrs. Pearson's story doesn't jibe with testimony given at the inquest," Redwine declared, but did not outline the asserted discrepancies. He said he planned to question her further.

Sheriff Rayburn pointed to inquest testimony that Pearson, when intoxicated, would get his pistol, threaten to take his life and Mrs. Pearson would wrest the gun from him.

"Pearson shot himself while struggling with Mrs. Pearson," said Rayburn, "and, as she always did, she took the gun away from him and into the bathroom."

"Both Mr. and Mrs. Pearson were drunk when they came home Wednesday night from a Palm Springs night club."

HUSBAND KILLS WIFE, EX-SUITOR, AND SELF

Estranged Man Slays Mate and Her Twin Sister, Then Ends Own Life.

COUDERSPORT, Pa., March 2.—(AP)—The bodies of a newly married couple and a former suitor of the wife were found shot to death late today in the couple's honeymoon home.

Coroner Philip R. Shaw, of Potter county, said he believed George Bremer, 27, killed his wife, 21, and John Scott, 23, and then turned the pistol on himself.

Bremer, a clerk, and the former Loring Mann, of near-by Millport, were married about six weeks ago. The coroner said that Scott had been attentive to Mrs. Bremer before her marriage.

HUSBAND KILLS MATE, HER SISTER, AND SELF. BOSTON, March 2.—(AP)—An estranged husband, Police Captain Joseph Buccigross said, tonight shot to death his wife and her twin sister and then committed suicide in the East Boston section.

Buccigross asserted Philip Cinotta, 35, of Revere, entered the home of his wife's brother, Armand Lessard, tonight by a pistol and killed the wife, Beatrice, 27, and her twin sister, Rose Lessard.

Cinotta, the officer added, then rushed from the house to a nearby alley, where he shot himself through the head.

PLUMBER, 58, SLAYS WIFE, COMMITS SUICIDE. WESTMINSTER, Md., March 2.—(AP)—Jesse Stultz, 58-year-old Westminster plumber, shot and killed his wife at their home tonight, then committed suicide.

City Police Officer Charles Seipp, who lives opposite the Stultz home, heard the shots. He broke into the house and found Mrs. Stultz lying near the dining room buffet, a doorway clutched in her hand.

The plumber, Seipp said, was "struggling around in the kitchen" and moaning. He died without regaining full consciousness.

ITALIAN QUEEN TO GET POPE'S COVETED ROSE. VATICAN CITY, March 2.—(AP)—Pope Pius fondly examined today the golden rose he intends to bless Sunday and give to Queen Elena as a tribute to her conduct as Queen, wife and mother.

She will be the first Italian Queen to receive the gift, which represents the highest mark of pontifical esteem.

The pure-gold rose—in reality it is a cluster of them—was handed to the pontiff by the Vatican sculptor and engraver, Professor Aurelio Mistruzzi.

Only two other persons have received the rose from Pius—Queen Mother Elizabeth of Belgium and former Queen Victoria of Spain.

BRAINTREE, Mass., March 2.—(AP)—When Traffic Officer John Shay held up his right hand in the middle of South Braintree Square today, he had two purposes in mind.

Shay stopped Town Clerk Ernest Woodsum's automobile and said, "I understand I was re-elected constable yesterday."

Woodsum confirmed the fact. "Well, you might as well swear me in," Shay said.

Alex Defends Commercialism in Intercollegiate Athletics

"Wullie" Livingstone, the assistant professional at the Capital City Country Club, peered at the new sprinkler system as it was tested yesterday.

"They will never have one of those system on the courses in Scotland," he said.

"Why?" asked Howard Beckett, the club pro.

"The whole community of Scots would be standing under them taking free showers," said "Wullie" Livingstone, of the golfing clan from North Berwick.

The sprinkler system, with its series of slowly revolving nozzles, will give the entire Capital City Club course a half inch bath of water every five days. It was a pronounced success in its initial test yesterday.

The display was one of rare beauty as the row of copper nozzles flung their sprays of water into a brisk March wind and sun.

The fairway literally was filled with brilliant rainbows which flung themselves across the windy sprays to disappear as the nozzles turned and to then reappear in the air as the sprays turned once more against the sun.

It was a display of rare beauty with at least 10 rainbows appearing, disappearing and reforming as the nozzles slowly revolved.

"Is there a pot of gold at the end of each one?" one of the visitors asked Johnny Westmoreland.

"Well, we hope so," said the club president.

A few members of the club stood about and grinned with satisfaction as they saw fairways, greens and tees drenched with water from the lake.

It means a perfect course for summer play no matter how often the hot winds sear the grass in other sections. Rain every five days is the prediction for summer.

THWARTING NATURE.

Sprinkling systems for golf courses are still something of a novelty. This one at the Capital City Club is the first one in the Atlanta district.

It means the weather man will have to gnash his teeth. He can't create a drought at the Capital City Club as long as the lake doesn't go dry.

We have air-conditioned homes, hotels, restaurants and barber shops. And office buildings.

And now we will have rain at a golf course in our town even if it doesn't rain for months at any other spot.

As yet no one has been able to do anything with a hot street in which the asphalt is about to flow like a slow river.

Those who have to do leg work about the streets in summer are awaiting the man who invents the air-conditioned suit. Or the electric wave which will surround the old body with a layer of cool air.

Old Mother Nature gradually is being thwarted in some of her acts. But when the old lady really acts up, such as the recent flood, there isn't much that can be done about it.

THE ELECTRIC EYE.

Mr. R. S. Stewart, reading here of the electric eye used to photograph the finishes of horse races and to open doors and turn on drinking fountains, writes in from Carrollton with news from Tifton. He writes that:

A new theater has been opened in Tifton. All the doors have the electric beam, causing the door to open as the customer approaches and breaks the beam of light which controls it. Inside the lobby is the drinking fountain which bubbles as one bends the old beam and breaks the beam of light which controls its action.

Mr. Stewart points out that Atlanta has no such attractions and demands justice for Tifton. I would mention that Mr. Stewart is a theater manager in Carrollton but he is a modest young man and dislikes any mention of his theater. Anyhow, it seems Atlanta is being bested in the matter of electric eyes.

Although, at that, some of the younger men around the shon sav that the eyes of some of the gals along Peachtree street are fairly electric.

MR. TUNNEY VISITS BRIEFLY.

Gene Tunney spent a few hours in our town yesterday afternoon. He was en route east from California by plane.

The one-time marine was one of our great champions. He probably is our most underestimated champion. The curious thing is he usually is regarded as being merely a boxer.

He was not a slugger. But Gene Tunney had a great right hand. And an excellent left. He did some serious damage to all his opponents. And his margin over Jack Dempsey in the Philadelphia fight was greater than generally accepted at the time.

The spectacle of Dempsey being toppled from his position as champion was the big story. Tunney's edge was a wide one.

Tunney always contended, and undoubtedly correctly so, he could have got up at any time in the second fight—the one at Chicago where the now famous long count was given.

The referee, of course, was going strictly by the rules. He could not begin counting until Dempsey retired to a neutral corner. Tunney, with one hand on a strand of rope, was looking up, watching the referee and Dempsey.

A BREAK FOR BOTH.

The fight was a break for both Tunney and Dempsey.

The Dempsey fans always will regard him as "The Champ." Dempsey himself has told me the luckiest break he had was the long count. Had he won he would have lost soon after—his legs were gone—and would have been remembered as the champion who lost. As it is he is regarded as the greatest champion of them all. Dempsey remained always one of the finest men in sport.

Tunney won and went on to make his fortune.

Tunney, too, is one of the finest products of the ring. He chose another path. He retired to the life he wanted. Dempsey remained in the spotlight. It was the life he wanted.

Both are worthwhile people. If the ring could produce another Dempsey and another Tunney the ring would be worth while, too.

But the ring has fallen into other hands. And it is to be doubted if the ring will produce, for a long, long time, another who can match either of them in ability or character.

Tide Trackmen Face Roman Soldier Out Jackets on April 24 Of $50,000 Handicap

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., March 2.—(AP)—The University of Alabama track team will engage in five dual meets with Southeastern conference foes before the annual conference meet at Birmingham May 15.

The schedule follows:
April 10—Tuscaloosa at Oxford.
April 11—Tuscaloosa at Knoxville.
April 12—Georgia Tech at Tuscaloosa.
April 13—Tuscaloosa at Tuscaloosa.
April 14—Mississippi State at Tuscaloosa.
April 15—Conference meet at Birmingham.

MIAMI, Fla., March 2.—(UP)—The hard luck which has dogged the Widener handicap Saturday claimed a third victim tonight as Elwood Sackensmeyer announced withdrawal of Roman Soldier.

Trainer Phil Reuter scratched him this morning, saying the Soldier pulled up sore after a brief trial. Shortly afterward his withdrawal from the Widener was announced.

KENTUCKY COACH DELIVERS BLAST AT CAGE MEETS

Rupp Wants All Teams in Tourney With No Set Location.

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 2.—(AP)—A blast against the type of basketball tournaments conducted in the South-eastern conference was delivered here tonight by Coach Adolph Rupp, of the University of Kentucky, upon return of the Wildcats, who last night won the conference meet at Knoxville, Tennessee.

A crowd of approximately 300 fans turned out to welcome the champions, who defeated Tennessee, 39 to 25.

"We had no tournament at Knoxville," Rupp declared. "There were only eight teams represented, while there are 13 in the conference. It was not fair to the teams not present nor could it be called a 'quota' tournament."

"My idea of a tournament," continued the Wildcat cage tutor, "if you have one, is to have all the teams in the conference represented and instead of having a tourney at one set location, more it around every year and let each member act as host. Besides giving every school a chance to be host, it will instill greater interest in basketball in those sections which hold the tournament."

Rupp said his "chief objection" to tournament play is that a "reasonable amount of interest is not given to each conference game played during the season. I believe every conference game should be a championship event in itself."

"That will draw crowds, just what every school hopes to do. Conference play is the only way to decide champions. The team with the most victories at the end of the season should be declared the winner of the conference."

Outside of his attack on the tournament, Rupp appeared happy that Kentucky had won its third conference tourney crown since 1921.

Cooper's $5,420 Tops For Pros Since January

MIAMI, Fla., March 2.—(AP)—"Lighthorse Harry" Cooper, of Chicago, has won $5,420 in the golf tournaments since January 1 to lead all the pros in the business for the first quarter of 1937, according to a tabulation today by Fred J. Corcoran, P. G. A. tournament bureau manager.

Cooper's stroke average of 70.888 was just a shade poorer than that of Ed Dudley, of Augusta, Ga., who shot 70.61. Dudley was only sixth in winnings, however, with $2,073.

Sam Snead, the youngster from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., was second in winnings with $3,497.

The other winners of more than $500, in order: Horton Smith, Chicago, $2,753.83; Ralph Guldahl, St. Louis, $2,491; Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., $2,073.75; Harold McSpaden, Winchester, Mass., $1,348.33; Johnny Revolta, Evanston, Ill., $1,345.05; Lawson Little, San Francisco, $1,335.83; Byron Nelson, Reading, Pa., $1,062; Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., $984.63; Jimmy Hines, New York, $872.62; Gene Sackett, New York, $883.34; Dick Metz, Chicago, $820; Tony Manero, Salem, Mass., $598.75; Neil Christian, Yakima, Wash., $591; Earl Wood, New York, $563; Art Beal, Monterey, Cal., $549.49; Dayton, Ohio, and Ed Oliver, Wilmington, Del., $500 each.

PAT BERG CARDS SENSATIONAL 76

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 2.—(AP)—Pat Berg, four strokes today, and the sizzling game of Patty Berg and the Minneapolis red head paced qualifiers in the annual Florida east coast women's golf tournament.

Ousted in the second round of the South Atlantic event at Ormond Beach last week, the determined Patty came back with fire in her eye and a magic touch on her putter to post a 76.

Her best exhibitions ever seen on the Florida St. Augustine links. On four of the last nine holes she had birdies, topped with an eagle two on Number 13.

Second place went to Dorothy Travers of San Francisco, Patty's conqueror at Ormond Beach, who clipped two strokes from par with a fine 78.

Kathryn Hemphill, of Columbia, S. C., Ormond Beach winner, fired a 79 and took show honors.

A high wind which failed to daunt Miss Berg sent other scores hiking. The red head started match play tomorrow in an encounter with Mrs. R. H. Trickett, of Birmingham, Ala., who posted a 92 today.

Miss Trautz's first-round opponent, Miss Lillian Zech, of Chicago, turned in an 86. Mrs. Henry Johnson, of New Smyrna, Fla., qualifying at 92, furnishes the opposition for Miss Hemphill.

Canton Girls Crush Lawrenceville, 35-19

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., March 2.—Canton girls flashed amazing skill here tonight to vanquish a strong Lawrenceville team, 35-19, for the championship of the ninth district. Canton led at the half, 22-16.

Canton had previously won the Western tourney at Gainesville, while Lawrenceville was triumphing in the Eastern division meet at Jasper. During the regular season Canton and Lawrenceville won 28 games each, losing only one.

Tonight, Killian, with 15 points, and Ellington, with 11, paced the winners, while Ellington's 11 set the pace for Lawrenceville.

Gulf Refining Wins Second Half Honors

Gulf Refining Company defeated the Georgia Power Company, 40 to 31, Tuesday night to win last-half honors in the City League. The winners will meet Fulton Bag, first-half winners, for top honors for the season.

Getzen and Fincher were the big point-getters for the Refiners, while Smith was the big gun for Power Company.

Sprinkler Test Cheered by Capital City Club Golfers

First testing of the new Capital City Country Club sprinkler system for the golf course was held yesterday afternoon and was cheered as a complete success. It assures perfect playing conditions this summer. At the top a committee inspects one of the nozzles which are fitted to the connections for the night "rains." Left to right, John Westmoreland, club president; R. S. Newcomb, one of the engineers in charge; Howard Beckett, club professional, and Raymond Cole, another of the engineering staff. Below is a series of the sprinklers in action along the fairway.

MOXIE ARRIVES, SURE OF FIGHT

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP)—Max Schmeling, heavyweight title challenger and former champion, arrived from Germany today full of confidence that Jimmy Braddock will bring his crown into the ring for their scheduled fight at Madison Square Garden Bowl on June 3.

After conferring with John Reed Kilpatrick, Garden president, Schmeling scorned all suggestions that Braddock intended to give him the "run-around."

"I don't think so," he said in reply to a question whether he believed the champion would fail to appear. "Braddock will fight me, I'll bet, on June 3. We have a contract and it's legal."

In event Braddock fails to appear, however, the German said he would not claim the title, as that "can be won and lost only in the ring."

Jim Braddock Back in Florida.

MIAMI, Fla., March 2.—(AP)—Heavyweight Champion James J. Braddock, arriving today with Mrs. Braddock, said he would stay for a month and begin light training for his title bout with Joe Louis at Chicago in June.

Braddock To Train at Wisconsin Camp.

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP)—Heavyweight Champion Jim Braddock will train at Sandy Lake, Wis., for his June title bout with Joe Louis in Chicago.

The champion's manager, Joe Gould, said tonight Braddock will open the camp, which is not far from Superior, Wis., in mid-March, and will remain there about six weeks.

Setter Holds Point In Path of Train---Killed

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 2.—(AP)—Mohawk's Brilliant Joe is dead. Joe, as he was known to his master and to his friends with whom he hunted, died as all truly great bird dogs would like to die—on point. For if Joe had not been the fine hunter he was it would not have cost him his life.

An inherent instinct, gained from a strain passed down to him from a long life of well-bred Llewellyn setters, made him hold his point—even in the path of an onrushing passenger train which crushed life from him as he stood immobile waiting for his friends to flush and kill the prey.

Joe belonged to Dr. A. C. Wade, of Augusta, and was killed yesterday while hunting in Burke county with three Augustans—Paul T. Chance Sr. and his two sons, Paul Jr. and James Chance.

A coyote was flushed. Joe started in pursuit of the singles. Coming to a railroad he froze on point. The elder Chance said he saw the train fully 200 yards from where Joe stood but no amount of shouting would move the dog. The train drew nearer, but Joe, the well-bred setter, held his point.

Mohawk's Brilliant Joe is dead now. His training and instinct cost him his life, but his human friends, in years to come, can thrill their fellow sportsmen with the story of the last point of a truly fine dog.

Capital City Course Given Its Initial 'Bath'

Sprinkler System Which Nullifies Drouths Has Successful Test; Members Pleased.

By Ralph McGill.

When the summer heat arrives and the weatherman reports, "Fair and continued hot," he will have to exclude the Capital City Golf Club from his predictions.

The sprinkler system, which has been the dream of many club members for several years, is completed and yesterday had its first test—a thoroughly successful one.

The big nozzles, which fit into the pipes sunk below the surface of the fairways, flung water over the entire width of the fairways. The nozzles, of course, are removed after the night sprinklings.

100 GALLONS A MINUTE.
Pressure of 100 pounds forces the water out at the rate of about 100 gallons per minute.

On the "pop-up" valves give the trees their bath.

The greens are watered by the same system except the nozzles there are portable.

The system was voted by the club membership last summer.

The work required: Raising the dam in the lake which added 18 inches of water to the lake. This meant the addition of 12,000,000 gallons of water to the lake.

Lake water is much more beneficial to the grass than city water which is "treated" with chlorine and other chemicals.

HALF-INCH BATH.
The entire course can be given a half inch of water every five days.

A half inch is equivalent to a long, hard rainfall.

The tees and greens will be, of course, watered every night.

It means the Capital City Club

BAER AND PILOT SUED BY GARDEN

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP)—Madison Square Garden's threatened legal reprisal as the result of the collapse of plans to pit Max Baer against Bob Pastor in a 10-round bout on March 19 became a reality tonight as suits were instituted against Baer and his manager, Ancil Hoffman, and two British promoters.

John Reed Kilpatrick, president of the Garden, announced the Eight Avenue Corporation's legal representatives, the firm of Chadbourne, Wallace, Park & Whitehead, had instituted suit for $50,000 against Baer and Hoffman charging violation of a contract with the Garden.

A suit for a like amount has been brought against Alfred C. Critchley, British promoter, and his matchmaker, Syd Hulle, charging them with interfering with the Garden's "contract rights" in signing Baer for two fights in London, the first scheduled for April 15.

Dallas Seeking Baer-Pastor.

DALLAS, Texas, March 2.—(AP)—J. Curtis Sanford, oil man and president of the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association, today offered Max Baer, former world's heavyweight champion, $50,000 to fight Bob Pastor here in June.

Sanford, promoter of the Cotton Bowl football game, said he talked by telephone with Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager, in New York, and was told the offer would be considered and an answer given "in the next few days."

Gilbert Hall Bows In Another Upset

NEW YORK, March 2.—(UP)—George Seewagen, unused player from New York, today scored the third upset of the annual national indoor tennis championship by eliminating J. Gilbert Hall, of Orange, N. J.

Seewagen advanced into the quarter-final round with a 6-2, 2-6, 10-8 victory over the sixth seeded New Jersey ace, Gregory S. Mangin, defending champion, and Arthur Hendrix, No. 3 player, Lakeland, Fla., were eliminated yesterday.

The five remaining seeded stars won their way into tomorrow's quarter-finals with Frankie Parker, No. 2 star, Springfield, N. J., disposing of Gilbert A. Hunt Jr., of Washington, D. C., 11-9, 6-4.

Baseball League Of 6 Teams Set

The Atlanta league was formed at a meeting of amateur baseball team managers at Trammell Scott's store Tuesday night. The league will consist of six teams. They are Exposition Mills, Whittier Mills, Scottdale Mills, Fulton Bag, Southern Railway and Coca-Cola Cafe. All of these teams have been strong in past years, and every one of them has been a champion in its day.

The league will open the season on April 24, and play three rounds. The next meeting of the league will be March 16.

'GATE RECEIPTS FROM FOOTBALL PAY THE BILLS'

Tech Coach Puts Blast on System Adopted by Johns Hopkins.

By the Associated Press.

Coach W. A. Alexander, of Georgia Tech, dean of Southeastern conference football mentors, defended the dollar mark in intercollegiate gridiron relations today.

He was discussing Johns Hopkins University's announcement that it is abolishing all paid admissions and doing away with visiting team guarantees as a move to spread the benefit of athletic activity to all students.

"I don't see how they figure this is going to spread the athletic benefit to more students," said the rugged, gray-haired Alexander.

"Whether the school pays for its athletic plant and program out of its regular budget or from gate receipts, it will make no difference that I can see in the number of men on its teams. Johns Hopkins, I'm sure, won't carry more men on its football squad next year."

"Most schools," he continued, "have a large intra-mural program which takes in the general student body. But in most cases, and in our own here—it has been the football gate receipts which have paid for the large plant, land and equipment for all athletic training."

"Alex" said he viewed the system recently adopted by the University of New Hampshire "as the coming thing" in college athletics. The school is put on a strict athletic budget each year, he explained. This remains practically unchanged from year to year taking the "peaks and depressions" out of the athletic program.

In the TRAINING CAMPS

TRAVIS SIGNS.

ORLANDO, Fla., March 2.—(AP)—Cecil Travis, rangy infielder, signed his contract today and immediately won an assignment as the Nat's 1937 shortstop. He was an in-and-out player last season but was handed the berth today without reservation.

"There will be no more experimenting," said Manager Bucky Harris. "I've told Travis the shortstop job is his without fear of competition and he won't have that to worry about. That was his big handicap last season."

FRANKHOUSE IN FOLD.

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 2.—(AP)—The Dodgers marked one man off their holdout list today when Fred Frankhouse signed before the second practice session. Van Mungo, the only other assigned moundman, had a long conference with Business Manager John Gorman. Gordon (Blimp) Phelps, down to 216 pounds, joined the squad and whacked the ball over the left-field fence for the benefit of clearwaten Chilly weather limited the practice to light exercise and photography.

GIANTS SIGN ONE.

HAVANA, March 2.—(AP)—Harry Danning, second-string catcher of the New York Giants, signed his 1937 contract today and Roy Spencer, third-string receiver, arrived in Havana. Danning has been on hand since the training camp opened and has worked in games with Cuban teams. Spencer, however, did not get his base camp recently sought assurance he would be kept with the club all season.

Manager Bill Terry participated in his first workout, a three-hour drill. Frank Gargano, the shortstop job during last Sunday's game, remained on the bench.

HOAG JOINS YANKS.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 2.—(AP)—Myril Hoag, Yankee outfielder, who was injured last July, turned up today for his first workout since he was hurt. He appeared in splendid condition and said he "felt great."

A walking race around the bases followed the drill. "Bump" Hedley, Syd Chandler, Monte Pearson, Frank Makosky, Johnny Murphy, Jim Tobin and Jack Laroche tossed the ball up easily for batting practice.

Delbert Galt, first baseman recently bought from the Red Sox, signed his contract today.

HUDLIN AGREES.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 2.—(AP)—Pitcher Willis Hudlin, a holdout despite his record of only one 1936 victory, entered the Cleveland Indians' 1937 fold here today after a conference with Manager Steve O'Neill.

Hudlin did not disclose the terms under which he signed up.

Cleveland's hurling staff was complete except for Johnny Allen, the fiery former New York Yankee who turned down his contract and insisted on a salary increase.

PARKER MAY STICK.

MEXICO CITY, March 2.—(AP)—Clarence "Ace" Parker, the All-American football player from Duke University, and Jack Pearson, of Brunswick, Ga., who played with Albany in the International league last year, shape up as two of the most promising rookies in the Philadelphia Athletics' training camp.

Parker, who got four hits in six times up, including a homer, Sunday as the A's beat the Combrats, 14-11, is in line for the job of utility infielder. Manager Connie Mack said.

Pearson apparently has the inside track on the shortstop position, replacing Lamar Newhouse, who held down the post last year. Pearson, it is felt, has the best chance of developing into a hitter.

HEMSLEY REFUSES.

ST. LOUIS, March 2.—(AP)—William O. Dewitt, business manager of the St. Louis Browns, said tonight Rollie Hemsley, veteran catcher, had returned his contract unsigned for the second time.

"Hemsley stood pat on his demand for $2,500 more than he received last year and we are standing pat also, offering him the same salary he received in 1936," said Dewitt.

JOCKEY QUITS.

LOS ANGELES, March 2.—(AP)—Jockey Leon Fallon, ace rider for Alfred G. Vanderbilt's stables at Santa Anita this season, quit the services of the millionaire sportsman today.

ANTI-CATTLE RUSTLIN' BILL PASSED IN HOUSE ALMOST UNOPPOSED

Measure Enacted on Eve of Visit to Assembly by 1,000 Cattle Growers.

On the eve of a visit from some 1,000 leading cattle growers of Georgia, the house of representatives yesterday overwhelmingly passed a bill, sponsored by the boys and the girls from the cow country and designed to end once and for all what they say is had cattle rustlin' in south Georgia. The boys and the girl sponsoring the bill included Representative Parker, of Colquitt county; Corbitt, of Atkinson county; Edwards, of Thomas county, and the lady from Long county, Mrs. Helen Williams Coxon.

Representative Parker, the speaker pro tem, of the house, said the action on the bill wasn't motivated by the incoming group of cattlemen. He and the other representatives from the section where cattle growing is beginning to flourish again were very serious about their bill. The representatives from the city counties and those from north Georgia were not quite so serious but gave wholehearted approval to the bill.

There were only three votes against it, one of them being Representative Howard, of Chattoochee county, who said he wasn't convinced that it would keep the farmer from selling his cattle to the butcher without difficulty. Parker, in explaining the bill, said that Dr. Howard was all wrong. The measure provides that all ac-

Ex-President of Spain Is Now a Paris Scribe

PARIS, March 2.—(AP)—Niceto Alcalá Zamora, who earned a million and a half pesetas a year as president of Spain, said tonight he was trying to eke out a living as a newspaperman in Paris.

"The Giral government (Jose Giral Pereira was premier of Spain at the outbreak of the present civil war) disposed of all my fortune," said Alcalá Zamora, who was touring the polar regions when the fighting began in July.

He was ousted last April 7 from the presidency by a 235-5 vote of the Spanish Cortes. The ouster was accomplished by dominat Leftists who vowed never to forgive Alcalá Zamora for "handing over power to the Rightists" after the Leftist rebellion of 1934.

tual dealers in cattle must be licensed and must register every transaction. Parker explained that thousands of head of cattle are being stolen every year in south Georgia, and, because dealers are unlicensed and do not register their purchases, there is no way to trace the animals. Under the terms of the bill the dealers must also furnish authorities with a description of all the cattle bought and sold.

Dr. Howard sought to speak against the bill but the previously made call for an immediate vote was sustained over his objection.

The house, together with the senate, will hear more about the problems of raising cattle this morning when Cattleman E. B. Weatherly, of Cochran, leads his host of producers to a joint session of both bodies for that purpose.

PREPARE FOR CONCLAVE. CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., March 2.—(AP)—Street decoration work started today in preparation for the convention of the Shrine Directors' Association of North America, which convenes Tuesday and continues through Friday.

BELT LINE HIGHWAY AROUND CITY SOUGHT

Bill Introduced by Fulton Solons Aimed at Traffic Congestion Relief.

A 31.5-mile belt line highway encircling the city, intended to relieve traffic congestion by establishing another route for through traffic, has been proposed in a bill introduced in the house of representatives yesterday by the Fulton delegation.

Providing for the state highway to take over maintenance of approximately 140 miles of roadway in the county, a companion bill to the belt line route also was introduced.

The proposed route would be designated the "Miller Belt Line," taking its name from W. L. Miller, chairman of the state highway board. Paved roads on the route now in existence would be utilized and paving would be done on thoroughfares now not hard-surfaced, the bill provides.

Provision is made for this route to be maintained by the highway board. The belt line would carry through traffic around the congested sections of Atlanta by providing a circuitous route to the east and west of the incorporated limits. It would touch Bolton and Adamsville on the west; Buckhead on the north; Decatur on the east and Hapeville and College Park on the south. All main traffic arteries would be connected with the new route.

State maintenance is sought in the companion bill for 140 miles of roads, including Highway 101 from the Woodstock road, Old National road from Cook's crossing, Senoia road, Byron road, Hutchison Ferry road, Pryor road, Fairburn-Riverton road, Good's-Rico road, Cascade-Palmetto road, East and West Milton road, Red Oak-Union City road and Hauze-Arnold's Mill road.

2 EX-OFFICIALS GUILTY IN BLACK LEGION PLOT

Former Mayor Among Nine Convicted of Plan To Kill Publisher.

DETROIT, March 2.—(AP)—Nine more men were added today to the list of more than a score convicted of Black Legion terrorism since the murder of a WPA worker exposed the secret society last May.

N. Ray Markland, former mayor of suburban Highland Park, and Arthur F. Lapps Sr., until a few months ago a milk inspector for the Detroit Board of Health, were among the nine found guilty of conspiring to kill L. Kingley, newspaper publisher of the suburb.

Recorder's Judge John V. Brennan, who heard the case alone after the 16 defendants waived trial by jury, acquitted seven other men of the state's charge that they plotted to shoot Kingley in 1933 because of his political opposition to Markland, who was defeated for re-election in 1934.

Convicted also were Roy Hepler, Black Legion "colonel;" Rudyard Kipling Wellman, garage owner; Alvis Clark, former automobile plant foreman; Willard Foster, suspended Highland Park fireman; Frank Howard, suspended fire captain of the suburb; Matthias O. Gunn, former street railway line man; and Hubert James, an automobile worker.

REPUBLICAN SEES F. D. R. RE-ELECTION

Dye Firm Head Offers Even Money Roosevelt Will Serve Third Term.

SANFORD, Fla., March 2.—(UP)—Frank Evans, president of the Plymouth Company, East Boston, Mass., tonight offered even money that "Franklin D. Roosevelt will be elected President in 1940."

Evans, a dyed-in-the-wool Republican who supported Hoover in 1932 and Landon in 1936 with both finance and prestige, based his prediction on observations made during a four months' sojourn in Boston.

"There is more business in the north than I ever saw before," the dye manufacturer said, arriving here for a vacation. "I believe it originates from President Roosevelt's programs."

Evans said he believed the President would not desire a third term but that his wishes would be subordinated to a "citizenry that has unbounded faith in Roosevelt and who would demand him for a third term in the White House."

MEXICO COMPETES IN OIL INDUSTRY

President Cardenas Creates Government Petroleum Administration.

MEXICO CITY, March 2.—(AP)—Mexico went into the oil business today in competition with private industry that includes approximately a $400,000,000 foreign investment.

President Lazaro Cardenas, moving quickly as the semi-official Petroleos de Mexico expired last night, created a new "general administration of national petroleum" to make over and operate the old company's assets as well as any future oil concessions the government may grant its agency.

Independent producers seemed little disturbed although one concern voiced fear the government agency, since it will be tax free and the employees will be government employees, might have an unequal competitive advantage.

There was even a hint the government agency might co-operate with private industry.

YOUTH'S BODY FROZEN, FOUND ON MOUNTAIN

PIKEVILLE, Tenn., March 2.—(AP)—The body of Venous Thurman, 21, was found face down on the mountain, 11 miles from here yesterday by his brother, Robert Thurman.

The brother and investigating officers said Venous Thurman had frozen to death. He was the son of R. E. Thurman and worked in a rock crusher near here.

Memphis - New Orleans Non-Stop Swim Planned

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 2.—(AP)—Woodson Smith, 27-year-old Memphian, proposed today to attempt a non-stop swim from Memphis to New Orleans.

Smith, crippled with infantile paralysis when a year old, said he planned to remain in the water day and night. He has been swimming since he was eight.

He's not sure himself he can do the stunt, but he's will to try—when he finds a backer.

She's Too Young to Wed, the Law Declares

Margaret Theresa Plass Wilbur, shown above with her newly wedded husband, Webster Wilbur, 21. Judge Flannery said she told justices of the peace that she was 21. Her real age was said to be 15.

CHILD'S MARRIAGE MAY BE DISSOLVED

N. Y. Bride, 15, Falsely Stated Age as 21, Juvenile Court Says.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., March 2.—(AP)—Children's court Judge J. Gordon Flannery found a 15-year-old bride guilty of juvenile delinquency today and indicated that she would be separated from her husband.

Judge Flannery held that Margaret Theresa Plass Wilbur, bride of Webster Wilbur Jr., 21, in a double elopement, had falsely stated in her application for a marriage license that she was 21. He said the case would be disposed of later.

The girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Van Ness Plass, attended the hearing. Previously Mrs. Plass, 50, mother of ten and grandmother of 21, had characterized 15 as "a good age to marry" and said she was wed at that age.

Meanwhile Jesse Haines, father of Grace Haines, 17, who became the bride of Margaret's brother, Van Henry Plass, 26, in the double elopement, said he would seek an annulment of his daughter's marriage.

Young Plass, a widower with three children, faces a hearing in city court next Monday on an abduction charge preferred by Haines.

Justice of the Peace George C. Dietz, who presided at the double marriage of the young couples February 20, said both brides gave their ages as 21.

FBI AID SOUGHT IN SHOPLIFT CASE

City Detectives Ask Federal Men To Establish Woman's Identity.

City detectives appealed to the Federal Bureau of Investigation yesterday to help them establish the true identity of Mrs. Mittie Williams, indicted Monday by the Fulton grand jury on 18 counts of shoplifting.

Police believe Mrs. Williams, who had a decided weakness for expensive furs and dresses, had a woman accomplice in many of her 15 "jobs." Detectives think that with the true identity of Mrs. Williams determined they can arrest the "hunted accomplice."

Despite the fact Mrs. Williams was under suspicion for months and employees had orders to keep her under strict surveillance, she repeatedly took costly coats, furs and dresses from downtown department stores, it was charged by Sterling Gresham, private detective who arrested her.

NIGHTSTICK TURNS BULLET

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP)—The nightstick Patrolman George Schuckman carried under his left arm probably saved his life today, deflecting a bullet aimed at his heart by a holdup man who was captured a few minutes later when a quick-thinking taxicab driver literally drove him into the arms of another officer.

SENATE CONFIRMATION

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP)—The senate confirmed without debate today the nomination of Carl McFarland, of Montana, to be assistant attorney general.

HIGH WATERS REcede ALONG MISSISSIPPI

Mighty River Ebbs for First Time Since Flood; Drop at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, March 2.—(AP)—High water in the Mississippi river, for the first time since the flood started, began dropping all along the stream's course as far south as New Orleans.

The recession was small from Natchez, Miss., southward, but swift to the north. Engineers, with all levees still holding, expressed confidence the tremendous volume of water would be carried safely to the gulf. National guardsmen assigned to levee duty in Louisiana and Mississippi were withdrawn.

Although the main river dikes were holding, many families in Louisiana and Mississippi have been driven from their homes by backwater overflowing from tributary streams.

Backwater was still rising in the Louisiana parishes of Catahoula, Concordia, Lissalle and Rapides, but it was expected to recede as the Mississippi begins falling.

Approximately 10,500 persons in Louisiana and 8,000 or less in Mississippi were being cared for at refugee camps.

The one highway remaining open to Jonesville, La., was closed by high water and the town could be reached today only by boat, but no suffering was reported.

The river dropped .1 of a foot at New Orleans in the past 24 hours to 19 feet, two feet above flood level. Similar falls were recorded upriver to Natchez where the fall was 2 of a foot to 57.3 feet, 11.3 feet above flood level.

Farther north, Vicksburg had a fall of 4 of a foot and Helena, Ark., 1.1 feet.

Swats Lustrous Orb, Parisian Draws Fine

PARIS, March 2.—(AP)—Blackening "one of the most beautiful eyes in the world" cost an angry pedestrian a 1,000 franc ($16.50) fine today and an eight days' suspended jail sentence.

Actress Mado Taylor, winner of a Parisian eye supremacy competition, testified in correctional court that one of her lustrous orbs was blackened when Lucien Gabriel took a poke at her while arguing over the sidewalk space she and her umbrella were taking up.

S. W. PULITZER WEDS MRS. JANE MARTIN

PALE BEACH, Fla., March 2.—(AP)—Seward Webb Pulitzer, New York, grandson of the late Joseph Pulitzer, was married here to Mrs. Jane Martin, of Maryland.

The ceremony was performed yesterday by County Judge Richard P. Robbins at his office in the courthouse. Both gave their ages as 25.

Young Pulitzer arrived here from New York in his plane several days ago.

He is the son of Ralph Pulitzer and is a member of the publishing family.

Life and Customs in Honolulu Described by Former Atlantans

By Sally Forth.

CUSTOMS vary the world over, and people still cling to beliefs and habits of their ancestors. Today Sally presents an interesting letter describing life in gay and colorful Hawaii and written by a former Atlantant, Lieutenant Christian H. Clarke Jr., U. S. A. Chris, as he is known by his friends, is stationed at Fort Shafter in Honolulu, where he is aide to Major General Hugh M. Drum. His first detail after his graduation from West Point Military Academy was at Fort McPherson, and he was a sought-after figure in both civilian and military circles here.

Reverdy Clarke is spending several months with his brother in fascinating Honolulu and is taking part in the young officer's interesting activities and social life. In a letter written on February 20 to his father, Christian H. Clarke, here, Chris says: "Today is the Chinese New Year's Day. Reverdy and I were invited to call on the Chun Hoons, Honolulu's most prominent Chinese merchant family. They served their guests a veritable Chinese meal. I have been there before, last year, but it was Reverdy's first try at eating with chop sticks. The menu included such things as candied squash, tomatoes, cabbage, etc."

The party lasted half a day, it seems, and 500 people were invited. The invitations were "staggered," Chris explains, so that everyone did not go at the same hour. He and Reverdy were invited from 12 to 3. A particularly interesting feature of the party to the Atlantans was the serving of hot tea in quaint little tea bowls, with brandy or Scotch served in still smaller bowls.

According to Chris, the Chinese observe some very unique customs at New Year's. First, they give their home a big "spring cleaning." Then they settle all grudges with their enemies, pay all back debts, fire lots of firecrackers, and worship their various gods of happiness, peace, prosperity, and love. They hold an "at home" and decorate their houses with the New Year flower, the fragrant narcissus. "Last night," writes Chris, "the Chinese section of the city was thronged with people celebrating, and the narcissus venders were everywhere. It was very gay and colorful—especially with all the Chinese clothes."

Very recently Chris was included in a dinner party given in Honolulu by Captain and Mrs. William Saffarans, whom Atlanta takes pleasure in claiming. Of course, you remember Mrs. Saffarans as the lovely Douglas Paine whom Bill Saffarans wooed and won during the time his family was stationed here at Fort McPherson, his father having also been an officer in the United States army. After dinner, the party danced at the Royal Hawaiian hotel, which is situated at that most romantic of all spots, Waikiki Beach, which Chris declares is the nicest place in Honolulu to dance and is always lovely. It was only last fall that Captain and Mrs. Saffarans and their young daughter, Douglas, sailed for station in Honolulu.

For the past month a movie crew has been taking shots at various places about the island for "Bing Crosby's" new picture, "Waikiki Wedding," says Chris in concluding his interesting letter. "Bing isn't here, now, but he vacationed at Waikiki for a couple of months last fall."

HOSTS of friends in the city will be interested in the arrival today of Colonel and Mrs. Charles M. Roberts, who will spend the remainder of the week here as the guests of their son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Camp, and of their young granddaughter, Louise Camp, at their home on Northwood avenue.

March 1 marked the retirement of Colonel Roberts from active service in the United States army. For the past two years he has served as commanding officer of the ordnance depot in Savannah, Ill., and twice during his long and distinguished career he has been stationed at Fort McPherson, during which time he won countless friends in local army and civilian circles. His only daughter, Mrs. Camp, is the former Marie Roberts. Colonel and Mrs. Roberts, who are traveling by motor, are en route to Miami, Fla., where they will spend the remainder of the winter and where they expect to establish future residence.

Mr. and Mrs. Camp will entertain informally at a family dinner tomorrow evening in compliment to their guests. Completing the family circle will be Colonel Roberts' sister, Mrs. John Woodside Sr., Mrs. Will Roberts and Miss Alma Roberts.

AS A farewell gesture to Louise Ballard, who sails for England on March 30, Dr. Elizabeth Broach and Miss Annie Mae Broach gave a luncheon in her honor yesterday. The folder, decorated with a ship flanking rose-colored sails, was presented to Louise, and each guest inscribed her name and wrote a "bon voyage" wish within the folder. The parchment place cards bore miniature ships with sails set for England, and pastel-shaded flowers graced the center of the table.

Louise leaves Atlanta next Saturday to spend several days at Northwestern University in Chicago, her alma mater. From there she will journey to New London, Conn., to visit her sister, Ray Ballard, who is at the head of the piano department at Connecticut College. In London, Eng., where Louise will spend several months, she will study advanced work in Braille system, and will witness the pageant attendant upon the coronation of King George VI. Louise spent nine months in London writing her English thesis, entitled "The Ideal English Gentlewoman from 1500 to 1640," when taking her Ph.D. degree at Northwestern University, and is thoroughly familiar with the "largest city in the world."

She will be joined in June by Ray, and the sisters will tour continental Europe before returning to the United States. Louise is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. L. J. Ballard, Jr., who, after having served as co-editor of Wesleyan Christian Advocate for many years,

March Meeting of Junior League Marked by Reports on Service Types

The March meeting of the Junior League, which took place yesterday afternoon at the Piedmont Driving Club, was marked by outstanding reports on new types of service which the league has undertaken during the past two months.

Mrs. William Minnich, chairman of league activities at Eggleston hospital, the main work of the Atlanta League, reported that seven members had been added to the group already serving at Eggleston and were devoting their efforts daily to special clerical work in augmenting the files, recording case histories and other details in connection with the new system of records recently installed at the hospital. Mrs. Minnich announced that the work was proving of such valued assistance at the hospital that requests had been made for an additional corps of clerical work which the group doing this specialized work would be increased to 14 for the remainder of the spring.

Mrs. Joseph Cooper Jr., welfare chairman, announced that a request had come from the Red Cross for an emergency corps of 10 volunteer workers who would be on immediate call to assist the local Red Cross in the event of disasters and who would assist in solicitations when national emergencies occur. Members of the league volunteered for this special service and registered with the local chapter for emergency duty.

Mrs. Cooper announced that the service being rendered by Miss May Thomasson, who is in charge of the parent and child guidance work which the league instituted this year, was meeting a definite need in the community and that expressions of appreciation for the service had come from a large number of local agencies and organizations. As a gesture of appreciation of the work Mrs. Cooper stated that the Atlanta League of Women Voters gave a luncheon earlier in the day, honoring Miss Thomasson, at which the various ramifications of the new work were outlined to the voters' league.

Mrs. Robert Pegram IV announced that quarters for the marionettes had been secured in the new Good Samaritan clinic building and stated that the marionette committee had received a request from the Junior League of Washington, D. C., for detailed information on recent marionette presentations.

Mrs. Edwin Lochridge, who recently was appointed a director of the Atlanta Social Service Index, reported on the value of the index as a clearing house for welfare and relief activities and explained ways in which the league would find the service of value. The principal activity of the arts and interests committee for the month, it was announced by Mrs. Francis Gilbert, chairman, would be the sponsorship of a Lenox china exhibit beginning March 8. Subchairman and a group of league members were appointed to serve with Mrs. Gilbert in staging the event.

After discussions by members of the Junior League and the report of the nominating committee, of which Mrs. Robert Foreman Jr. is chairman, the league voted to hold a straw ballot to determine the majority preference for president, with the nominating committee preparing a slate for other officers, the results of the straw ballot to be announced at the April meeting at which time the general election will take place.

Mrs. Henry Grady Jr. announced that Mrs. H. W. Holand, of St. Petersburg; Mrs. Alfred Martin, of Augusta, and Mrs. Hamilton McKee, of Charlotte, were the three candidates proposed for regional director of the fifth region and the director would be determined at an early date.

An unusual feature was a play, "Four and Twenty Blackbirds," which was presented by children of the Cornelia Day nursery, who have been trained in special children's play work by Mrs. Green Warren and Mrs. Ralph Paris. The play was unique in that costumes and sets were made up by the children, who are of kindergarten age. Special guests attending the presentation were Mrs. Preston Arkwright, honorary life president of the Sheltering Arms, officers and members of the Sheltering Arms and Cornelia Moore nursery.

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP)—

Lessening of a steel strike, following hours by leading producers, today spurred selected stock markets, issues in new high ground again took the lead, crossing 119 for the first time in the group since 1929. It closed at a figure, up 1.5 to 119.1, after a whirlwind performance, jumping 1.2 to 118.1 at high prices. The steel industry, a peaceful settlement of labor issues was expected to be discussed at a conference with union representatives tomorrow.

Utilities, copper, aircrafts and farm implements were well up in front, but sort of sizeable losses in evidence at the finish.

Active trading was pronounced at the start and just before the final gong. In between the trading pace was relatively slow. Transfers, however, totaled 6,170,000 shares as against 1.7 million the day before.

Owing to further advances in a number of the favorites, the Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 1.3 to 119.1, the rail group, the highest, at a point at 123. The rail group, the highest, at a point at 123. The rail group, the highest, at a point at 123.

Adding to cheerful sentiment for steel was the belief in financial markets that the new concession companies some $100,000,000 in high prices for finished products, high capacity, more operations at least for larger enterprises.

There were doubters in Wall Street, though, who suggested that much of purpose of stockpiling was for the possible strike, others suggested that manufacturing costs might bring sufficient counter resistance to stem the tide later.

Some coppers that have been kicked around recently on the belief against future metal needs had been a bit too feverish, came back briskly when red metal prices abroad rallied.
